59 Dead, 58 [illegible]
At Least Russia Flies
Have You Seen Mr. Burke?
Five Breaths a Minute

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

FIFTY-NINE men found dead in an Oklahoma coal mine. The world will never know their names, printed only in local papers. Only coal mine "hands," excepting one engineer, their going is a minor incident in industrial development.

However, the deaths may cause sympathy for a moment, a feeling that men running such risks should be better paid and safety devices developed in spite of cost.

Just before the war, Northcliffe offered $50,000 for a flight across the English channel, less than 50 miles.

On Tuesday, Coste, French flier, set a new record by flying more than 5000 miles without stopping or taking on fuel.

Great progress in a few years, from 50 miles to 5000. Who doubts that 10 years hence flying across the Pacific, at any point, will be pilots' "child's play," and flying the Atlantic work for student fliers.

By that time this country will have to think seriously of hostile air visits from Europe or Japan. Even our greatest "statesmen" will get their minds off archaic battleships.

The Russian marriage system is convenient for those uncertain as to their own minds. You get a divorce in Russia almost as easily as you get a box of matches in America.

Britain dislikes this, and a British court refuses to recognize a Russian marriage.

Our proud nation refuses to recognize anything that Russia does, except buying from us. We detest revolution, although our own Government and titles to American real estate are based on it.

This Anglo-American haughtiness may not be wise.

The Russians are going ahead industrially and in other ways. They will be the world's greatest cash customers one day.

Also "All the World's Aircraft" reports that of all the nations, Russia, in 1929, spent the largest percentage of its public moneys on aviation.

A nation that simultaneously develops aviation and industry is not one to be snubbed, safely.

Various cities want Fred Burke to ask him about murders.

Mr. Burke is said to have taught gangsters to use machine guns, in place of old-fashioned, inefficient pistols.

Chicago police believe that Burke directed the massacre of the seven Moran gangsters, mowed down as they stood side by side, faces to the wall.

An expert will take bullets from the bodies of the Moran men and see if they came from Burke's gun.

Six hundred years ago, Burke might have been a great condottiere, renting himself out to rival armies, with great artists making statues of him, another Colleoni.

How many times do you breathe in one minute. Guess, off-hand.

Many that know about the revolutions of an airplane propeller, or a steamship screw, take little interest in their own machinery.

The breathing question is suggested by the case of Miss Margaret McIntyre, Plainfield, N. J., school teacher, who breathes only five times a minute, 12 seconds to a breath. Scientists call her a "physiological miracle."

You, probably, breathe 15 to 18 times per minute, the average for adults.

However, Miss McIntyre has one advantage. She breathes very deeply. Experiments show that she takes in three pints of air at a breath. The average adult takes in only one pint. We all inhale too little oxygen. That is why we need exercise, making us breathe more rapidly and deeply.

The rule that public officials may not increase their own pay does not apply to New York. By practically unanimous consent the aldermen give the five borough presidents $20,000 each, instead of $15,000, and the mayor $40,000 instead of $25,000.

Now the aldermen ask higher officials to raise them from $5000 to $7500, and that will be done.

At $40,000 a year New York pays Mayor Walker $15,000 more per year than Lincoln was paid in the White House.

However, New York spends five hundred million dollars a year and more. Forty thousand dollars is not too much for man-

New England Sleet Covered, and Warning of a New Storm Is Issued

An ice-laden tree crashed through the side of a Boston & Maine passenger train at The Weirs, N. H., today, injuring eight persons, several seriously, in the worst of many accidents resulting from the storm.

The tree swept the train as it sped past, shattering a score of windows.

Rain, snow and sleet fell all over New England, felling poles, wires and trees, disrupting transportation and communication facilities and taking at least two lives.

Laconia, N. H., was the worst hit of any city in New England. There has been neither electric light nor power there since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. All mills are shut down and the streets are blocked by fallen wires and trees.

The fire alarm signal system is out of order and there is practically no telephone service there.

Outside New England storm and sub-zero weather continued east of the Rocky Mountains from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico with a known toll of more than 20 lives.

A new storm and a fringe of the cold wave moved toward Boston and were forecast to arrive tonight. Ships and trains were greatly delayed. In New Hampshire the Boston & Maine sent out section crews to clear the way for trains. Nearly all trains were behind schedule, the Red Wing Ex-

EDDIE CANTOR Rises to Say:

SOME fellows can't help being big. Take my old friend, Will Rogers, for instance. He devoted his space in the Tuesday's paper welcoming me to the writing clan.

Rogers told his readers that I am a specialist in matters pertaining to finance and Wall Street.

The cowboy humorist is right. I know so much about finance and Wall Street that I was forced to write my book, "Caught Short," and to do a daily column in order to recoup the losses caused by my expert knowledge of things financial.

Will Rogers calls me another Babson—but he should hear what they're calling Babson.

P. S.—If the editor omits the title "Caught Short," written above, he can get another boy to write giggles for his old paper.

ARMED PLANES FOR DRY SQUAD

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—Construction of seven seaplanes, mounted with machine guns, to combat liquor and other smuggling, and to aid in patrol and life saving work along the American coast, awaits congressional approval of President Hoover's recommendation that $320,000 be appropriated in 1931 for this expense.

The coast guard already has an appropriation of $144,000 with which to construct seaplanes and has four such craft in use, but when the additional amount is appropriated the planes now in service will be discarded.

GOODWIN FLAYS HARRIMAN ON TUNNEL

Tells Nichols His Opinion Is Worthless With $16,000,000 at Stake

Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of the Finance Commission today informed Mayor Nichols he made a serious mistake in asking and taking the advice of Henry I. Harriman in the matter of the planned $16,000,000 East Boston tunnel.

Harriman had "no definite, stable opinion worth considering when the expenditure of $16,000,000 of the people's money is at stake," Goodwin wrote in his letter to the mayor:

The letter follows:

"I am writing you this letter in a spirit of friendliness and co-operation, actuated by a desire that when the East Boston tunnel question is settled it be settled right.

"During the past few weeks I have learned that the subject is a highly controversial one and cannot be settled with any mathematical certainty.

DECRIES HARRIMAN

"As a result of the various conferences held by the committee appointed by you, of which I was a member, I have come to the definite conclusion that you made a serious mistake in asking and taking the advice of Mr. Henry I. Harriman, because it is clear to me that he had no definite, stable opinion worth considering when the expenditure of $16,000,000 of the people's money is at stake.

"From a careful study of the various reports that have been made from time to time on the East Boston tunnel, it seems clear to me that there are three outstanding experts on the subject matter.

"You and these other two officials have been studying this subject for 10 years and have made various reports and, strangely enough, the Legislature has delegated to you and the transit commission the authority to determine where the tunnel should be built and to build it.

"I think if you and the transit commission will sit around the oval table in your office you will get somewhere, and I know the people will then have confidence in the final decision because it will be made by those whose legal duty it is to make it."

Sullivan is chairman of the transit board and Springer is the board's engineer.

New York, Dec. 19 (INS)—Rudy Vallee, who croons love songs from the stage and over the radio, crooned love messages into her ear last July and promised to marry her in November, Agnes O'Loughlin, former Ziegfeld showgirl, charged in a breach of promise notice served on the orchestra leader today.

Miss O'Loughlin seeks $200,000 damages.

Vallee issued a statement from his office in which he admitted he knew the girl, but said he considered her a "good friend" and was "greatly surprised at her action."

To Test Sanity of Lynn Check Forger

Edward L. Hill, 35, of Broad st., Lynn, who police say has a record as a forged check passer, in municipal court today was ordered to the Boston Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

Hill was arraigned on a charge of uttering two checks to which the signature of Dr. Albert E. Hulme, Andover dentist, was forged.

Police said he deposited the checks, one for $125 and the other for $60, in the National Rockland Bank, and cashed the smaller of the checks.

Shopman Fined $250 for Bay Rum Sale

Jury Is Hung in 'Live Dead Man' Case

Mountain View, Ark., Dec. 19—The jury in the Connie Franklin murder trial reported to Judge S. M. Bones soon after 11 a. m. today that it was deadlocked. The judge ordered the jurors to continue deliberations on the fate of four men charged with torturing and burning Franklin alive.

The jury, composed of farmers, seeks to unravel a mystery without a parallel in the hill country, in which a 17-year-old girl accused a group of men of killing her suitor. A farm hand of 33 appeared at the trial to challenge her story and insist he was the missing sweetheart, Connie Franklin.

A fifth man is under indictment because of the girl's story, but was not brought to trial with the others.

The man claiming to be Franklin testified for two hours, contending that on the night last March he was to marry Tillar Ruminer, he "got drunk" with the men on trial, fell from his mule and was slightly injured. He said because she wished to postpone the ceremony he left the community and did not return until he heard of her story that he had been slain.

He said he had a wife, from whom he had not obtained a divorce, but that they had been separated for several years.

He gave his correct name as "Marrion Franklin Rogers," a son by a former marriage of Mrs. Lily Baker.

2 FINED IN SUIT CLUB SCHEME

Ollie H. Gregory, former minor league player, and his father, Jacob Gregory, in Middlesex Superior Court today pleaded guilty to conspiracy to defraud and were fined $500 each.

Judge Frederick W. Fosdick found them not guilty of a charge of conspiracy to steal.

The two men were on trial in connection with the operation of the Denby Tailoring Co., a suit club formed in 1928. It was charged they sold inferior goods to customers for high prices.

Worthing Girl's Suit Shocks Hub Friends

With amazement today friends of Helen Lee Worthing, Brookline beauty, former member of the Back Bay younger social set and former Ziegfeld Follies showgirl, learned she has been married for more than two years to a negro.

This revelation came in a dispatch from Los Angeles, where until two years ago she was in the movies.

The dispatch declared that the beauty has separated from Dr. Eugene C. Nelson, her negro husband, and has consulted an attorney with a view to obtaining a divorce.

JUST A PRAYER

I'm praying for a lot of things
I hope I get a few;
Mother hasn't any money
And don't know what to do.
I've read about GOODFELLOWS;
That must mean Santa's near,
Oh, thank you all for spreading
Such Godly Christmas cheer.

The above verse was sent to the GOODFELLOW EDITOR by a little boy who expressed his hopes in rhyme, and rather superior rhyme at that.

What do you say, GOODFELLOWS, does he win recognition from those more fortunate?

He doesn't ask much, just a little to turn Christmas into a day of joy rather than a day of sadness.

HOOVER AIDE IN LOBBY PROBE

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—Edwin P. Shattuck, lawyer friend of President Hoover, told the Senate lobby committee today he had not discussed the sugar tariff with the President.

Suitor Slays Widow and Self in 'Pact'

Westerly, R. I., Dec. 19—A love poem, a lawyer's letter regarding divorce and a crumpled note reading, "This is a suicide pact," lay side by side on a dresser in the apartment of Mrs. Edith Stewart today.

On a bed in the same room, Mrs. Stewart, a young widow, and George Shippee, 40, of Pawtucket lay side by side in death, the woman with four bullets in her breast, the man with a single bullet in his brain and a pistol still clutched in his right hand.

In an adjoining room, Mrs. Stewart's four children still slept when police broke down a door.

Shippee was the author of the poem and of the suicide note. His name and that of Mrs. Stewart were signed in ink at the bottom of the latter, but the woman signed after an argument, with the pistol at her back in a desperate effort to escape it, police believe.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Richards, in an adjoining apartment, were aroused from sleep by sounds of an

New Warnings Issued by the Weather Bureau From Boston to Eastport

MAINE'S WORST STORM.

Maine reported one of the most destructive sleet storms in history, with many communities isolated and great damage to orchards.

Every power, telegraph and telephone line along the coast for 50 miles inland strained under an ice load and predicted strong winds were expected to raise havoc with them.

In the train accident at The Weirs, the two most seriously injured were Harold L. Cummings of Woodsville, N. H., and Roland Stevenson of Lincoln, who, it was feared, would lose his sight. All the injured were taken to the Laconia Hospital.

New storm warnings for New England were issued by the Weather Bureau today while sleet, snow and rain fell in the six states, killing a score, and the cold wave moved on Boston from the west.

Gales, rain and snow were predicted for Boston tonight and tomorrow morning as the third day of the present storm found roads impassible in Western Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine.

MANY TOWNS ISOLATED

Many towns in northern New Hampshire and Vermont are isolated, with telephone and telegraph communication cut off and roads made impassable by glare ice and fallen trees. New Hampshire reported no telephone service to the outlying sections of the northern part of the state and a disrupted service in many cities.

The rain of the past three days in Boston continued today to be sleet and snow in nearly all other parts of New England, and the new storm, due tonight with a falling temperature, was awaited with apprehension.

STORM [illegible]NGS.

"C[illegible] northeast storm war[illegible] north of Boston [illegible] to southeast storm [illegible] Boston to Sandy Hook [illegible] northwest storm warnings Sandy Hook to Virginia Capes.

"Disturbance of marked intensity over western Pennsylvania, moving northeastward, will cause strong east winds this afternoon and tonight, shifting to northwest on Friday, Boston to Eastport."

The Boston Bureau predicted, "Cloudy, with rain and snow tonight, and possibly Friday morning. Friday colder, fresh easterly winds shifting to westerly Friday."

Western Union telegraph wires were torn down between Boston and Portland, disrupting the service. Lexington was without lights for several hours, as was Rochester, N. H., and surrounding towns due to fallen electric light poles.

In Lowell more than 30 breaks occurred in telephone wires, disrupting service to about 200 subscribers. Considerable storm damage was reported from the town of Westford.

Aviation throughout New England has been halted for three days, not even the mail flying between New York and Boston.

In Worcester County alone two deaths and nearly a score of injuries were attributed to the storm.

Boston's early morning fog was the worst of the season, bringing to a standstill the movement of vessels about the harbor.

CHICAGO HARD HIT

The worst winter conditions in many years were reported over the United States east of the Rockies as far south as New Orleans and Pensacola, where snow was falling for the first time in years.

Chicago, as usual, was the hardest hit of any city in the country with a 66-mile gale whipping snow and sleet in across the lake. Storm damage to Chicago's transportation system was estimated at more than $1,000,000, with more than 300 street cars derailed.

The wind from the lake was so cold and strong that Michigan ave. traffic policemen were relieved every half hour. Coastguardsmen at Evanston, Ill., declared the storm on the Great Lakes the worst in their experience.

MAN FROZEN TO DEATH

Throughout the entire middle west automobiles were abandoned on snow-drifted roads. One man was found frozen to death in his stalled car. In the Chicago metropolitan area 16 persons were dead from exposure or accidents caused by the storm.

Kansas City reported two deaths with a fierce prairie blizzard lashing the plains of the southwest. Sub-zero temperatures were common in Kansas and Missouri.

Snow fell in a belt across the southland from New Orleans to Atlanta, Ga., accompanied by heavy gales that wrecked farm buildings in several states.

In Canada conditions were worse than any experienced in this country. Hundreds of miles of telephone wires were a tangled mass of wreckage in Ontario. At London, Ont., 300 poles and 400 miles of long distance wires fell in the storm.

Shattuck Had Talk With Hoover Aide

ator Walsh (D), Montana, had asked the witness if he had talked with the President before accepting a job offered by Lakin.

"I told him I was employed by the Cuban sugar interests to try to work out some plan that would be fair to all," Shattuck answered.

"Why did you tell him at all about your employment?" he was asked.

"I saw him as I usually do," Shattuck said. "I usually call on him when in the vicinity."

UNFAIR TO HOOVER.

Shattuck said his friendship with Hoover had been "like any other friendship," adding that they had had a good deal of public work together and a large amount of charity work.

Senator Robinson (R.), Indiana, asked why Shattuck was employed "chiefly" because of his friendship with Hoover.

"I make no claim to be the adviser of Mr. Hoover," he said. "I have in the past 10 years done professional work for Mr. Hoover. I resent the implication that I am Mr. Hoover's closest legal friend.

"I think it is unfortunate that any such imputation should be received by the committee. My relations with Mr. Hoover have been very pleasant.

"I make no claim other than that I hope to have his friendship."

"Do you think it fair to have Mr. Hoover's name bandied about in this testimony?" Senator Robinson asked.

"I certainly do not," he said, "and I can't make it strong enough."

TALKED WITH NEWTON

Shattuck said the "inferences" from some of the testimony about his relations with Hoover were "improper."

"Are any of the facts untrue?" Senator Blaine (R.), Wisconsin, asked.

"I have not discussed the sugar tariff with Mr. Hoover. I have discussed it with Mr. Newton," Shattuck answered.

He said he had discussed the sliding scale proposal with Newton and had been asked by Newton to discuss it.

Shattuck was asked about a letter which Lakin wrote to secretary Aballi of Cuba which said Shattuck had had a conference with Hoover.

"I had talked with Mr. Newton," he said. "I had not talked with the President.

"The President gave you no directions at all?" asked Senator Robinson.

"Absolutely not," Shattuck said. "I never received any instructions from the President."

Walsh asked if Shattuck didn't know that Lakin was "counting heavily" on his relations with Hoover.

"I don't think he was counting so much on my relations with the President," Shattuck replied.

Robinson asked Shattuck if he knew Lakin had written a number of letters referring to Shattuck's relations with Hoover.

"I certainly did not," he answered quickly, raising his voice to a shout.

"Do you not realize you were employed chiefly because of your relation with the President?" Walsh asked.

"I do not," Shattuck said.

He added that all he had was his "library and reputation."

"In my home town," he added, "I think I have somewhat of a legal reputation and connections."

This discussion arose from a telegram from Lakin to Shattuck which said Lakin hoped Shattuck "because of his connections" could bring about a revision of the reciprocity treaty with Cuba. Shattuck said he had been associated with sugar people for many years and had valuable connections.

Walsh called attention that treaty revision would have to be done by the President through the Secretary of State.

"That is partially true," Shattuck said.

"The revision I had in mind could be accomplished by an act of Congress."

Shattuck said the proposed revision would increase the preferential duty given Cuban sugar under the tariff bill.

Auto Owner Loses R. I. Injury Suit

Providence, Dec. 19—The Supreme Court ruled today that C. F. Webb of Boston must pay $5000 damages to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kernan of Oakland Beach for injuries suffered when his car, in which he was not a passenger, struck the car in Warwick in February, 1928.

Webb appealed a Superior Court verdict, claiming he had not authorized use of his auto by Hazel F. Young, a Boston nurse, who was being driven by George Sutherland of Malden, Mass., when the accident occurred. The Supreme Court found Miss Young had Webb's implied permission.

RIVAL TRUST COMPANIES CRITICIZED

Rockland and Hingham Banks in Fight for Hull Branch

The Rockland and Hingham trust companies, which have been battling each other unsuccessfully for several years for a foothold in Hull, today came in for severe criticism before the state board of bank incorporation at the State House.

In opposing a new petition of the Rockland institution for authority to establish a branch at Hull, a citizen of that town, W. Edwin Ulmer, charged that the town deposits were the "stakes."

Both trust companies have been before the board and the Legislature several times in an endeavor to get a Hull branch.

Ulmer today urged the board to grant neither of the companies a charter, but to wait until he had an opportunity to present a petition for the incorporating of a new trust company for that town. The board took the request under advisement.

The speaker furher declared that the question of a bank for the town was an important one, that the community is divided into two camps, and has grown from being a business dispute into a political one.

Ulmer said that the large delegation present in favor of the Rockland petition had journeyed to the State House "to protect themselves." Two-thirds of the people of the town, he said, are either associated in politics or dependent for their living upon employers who were interested in the pending case.

Horace T. Fogg, representing the Rockland company, said that while technically the trust company was the petitioner, the branch is wanted by the people of Hull. He pointed out that the town has no banking facilities other than an "armored car" which takes the deposits to the Hingham Trust Company.

U. S. Steel has recently reached out to the Pacific coast, absorbing a great steel concern there.

The late Judge Gary, discussing different steel stocks, said: "Remember always that our company can sell steel at a profit for less than it costs others to make it. That would not be good for other companies in a price war."

Judge Gary, who understood public opinion and welcomed competition in reason, always avoided war of any kind.

He knew there was plenty of money for all, if they knew how to get it. He knew how. His successors know, also.

heard merely that she had been married to "a Dr. Nelson." No one knew he was a negro and it remained unknown until today.

Miss Worthing has been in the public eye since 1919, when her husband, whom she married secretly when she was 16 and he was leaving for war in France, submitted her photos in a beauty contest conducted by a motion picture magazine.

TOOK POISON IN 1922.

She won the contest, but the husband, son of wealth, from Dubuque, Ia., lost his beautiful wife. Two years later, after she had been in a movie and was acquiring fame in the Follies, she divorced him.

Known as "the girl who lives on Broadway," she was one of the most feted Follies girls—and then, in 1922, something happened in her life and she swallowed bichloride of mercury.

The poison nearly ended her career and her life, but she recovered.

It had been understood previously that she was engaged to B. G. Tomlinson, son of a wealthy New York lawyer, but the wedding never took place.

Four years later, the beauty was again in the news when she sued a perfume concern for $100,000, alleging it was using a photograph of her in advertisements without authority.

SOON A BANKRUPT

Miss Worthing maintained in court that "My face is my fortune." The suit was settled out of court and the concern was allowed to continue use of the picture "for a consideration."

In June, 1927, came the brief word that she had been married to Dr. Nelson, and two months later she went into voluntary bankruptcy in Los Angeles, listing liabilities as $19,086.62, against assets of $650.

The blonde beauty is the daughter of Richard F. Wortham of Massachusetts ave., Back Bay, formerly of Beacon st., Brookline. He is a Boston broker.

HER FIRST ROMANCE

She was born in Louisville, Ky., but her parents brought her to Brookline when she was a child. Her mother died when she was 10.

In Boston she had started studying voice when the United States entered the war, and she gave up her studies to give her services to the Brookline chapter of the Red Cross.

It was while in this work that she met McDonald.

Rome, Dec. 19 (AP)—Popolo Di Roma said today that Cardinal Maffi, archbishop of Pisa, would officiate next month at the wedding of the Prince of Piedmont, Italian heir, and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium.

The ceremony will be performed in Rome.

U. S. GIRL MAY JUNK ENGLISH TRADITION

Dancer's Love for Young Subaltern Causes a Storm Among the Guards

London, Dec. 19 (INS)—The ancient tradition that an officer of the British Guards who marries an actress must automatically abandon his commission may go by the board as a result of the latest romance of this sort.

If the engagement brings about the abolition of one of the oldest traditions of British Guardsmanship, it will be another occasion where an American has had a hand in renovating some of the old-time customs of this country.

Several months ago "Sunny" Jarman, little "hoofer" from the Great White Way, came here and danced her way to success on the stage of the Palace Theater as principal high-stepper in "Hold Everything." One night Francis Francis, a young millionaire subaltern in the brigade of Guards and scion of an aristocratic family, saw "Sunny" across the footlights and it was a case of love at first sight.

But generations ago it was made an unwritten law that no officer in the bodyguard of royalty could marry an actress, and, although since then an actress has sat in the House of Commons and royalty has honored stage folks with knighthoods, that age-old tradition still exists. So the young officer had to sacrifice his army career to tell the world he loved "Sunny." Yet he never dreamed of the storm of protest his forced resignation would arouse.

For two weeks now London has been talking about it. No sooner had the engagement and news of his resignation found its way to the front pages than a verbal attack was launched from both army and theatrical circles.

"If a prime minister married an actress would he be expected to resign," asked the former Zena Dare, one-time stage beauty, whose husband, Maurice Brett, had to resign from the Coldstream Guards when he married her.

"If a guard officer married a pedlar's daughter nothing would be said, but if he marries an actress he must leave the army. It's absurd," declared Maj. G. S. Gunnis, war hero. And so the talk goes on.

It is rumored that as a result of the widespread protests the King has given the question considerable thought, but whether he will do away with the tradition remains speculation.

'SUICIDE PACT' CLAIMS TWO

argument in Mrs. Stewart's room. For the first time since she had moved in last March they heard a man's voice in the apartment.

The argument was violent, but thye could not distinguish words. It ended suddenly in a spell of silence, followed by four shots. Two minutes later there was a fifth shot.

Police, who found the bodies following a telephone call from the Richards, identified Shippee through letters in his clothes. Nobody in the apartment house had ever seen him.

Investigation disclosed that he had been until recently a patient at the Lake Wallum State Hospital for Tuberculosis, where last March Mrs. Stewart's husband, Harry, died. He became enamored of the woman while she was visiting her husband, it is believed.

Whether he had ever visited her until today could not be learned. The women's children did not know him. Police are inclined to think that his visit last night was the first time he had seen her since his discharge from the sanitarum.

The love poem had ben sent to her from the hospital. The lawyer's letter to Shippee related to a possible divorce action either by him or his wife, who has not yet been located.

The crumpled condition of the "suicide" note indicated a struggle. Mrs. Stewart's signature was scrawled and hardly legible.

These facts, linked with the argument overheard by the Richards, indicated that the woman did not want to die. Nothing was found to prove that she was even in love with the man who killed her. She bore an excellent reputation in Westerly.

Lieut. George H. Champlin and Patrolman Robert Kessel who responded to the Richards' phone call of alarm, peered into the apartment through a kitchen window and saw the bodies. They then forced the door.

Italian King and Queen Visit Roman Pontiff

Impressive procession is shown as King Emmanuel of Italy and Queen Elena leave the Vatican after their visit with Pope Pius XI, the first made by an Italian sovereign since the voluntary imprisonment of the Pontiff started, nearly 60 years ago. The ceremony was carried out with medieval pomp and splendor. King Emmanuel (with plumed cap) and his Queen (in white and dark sash) are surrounded by Papal courtiers and the famous Swiss Guards. GREATER BOSTON FOLK TELL OF PERILS IN LINER RESCUES

Rescue tug arriving at Staten Island pier with passengers and crew of the Bermuda liner Fort Victoria after she was rammed by the Clyde liner Algonquin in the entrance to Ambrose channel during a dense fog in New York harbor yesterday.

This group of passengers on one of the rescue ships exemplified the spirit of all during their adventure. A vacation trip spoiled and many of their belongings lost—hardly a disconsolate face was to be observed. Many were from Boston and New England.

Bay Staters Reunited After Liners Crash

New York, Dec. 19—The lobby of the Hotel McAlpin, headquarters of the 250 rescued passengers of the Bermuda-bound steamship Fort Victoria, sunk in a harbor crash yesterday, was the scene of many happy family reunions today.

Husbands had been separated from wives in taking to lifeboats from the steamer after it was rammed by the Clyde liner Algonquin and landed in different parts of Manhattan and Staten Island. They all headed for the McAlpin Hotel, however, where the Furness Line had engaged rooms.

One of the reunited couples was Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Beresin of North Randolph, a suburb of Philadelphia, en route to Bermuda on a honeymoon.

Others were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harrison of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Andre Dunk of Salem, Mass., and David Guthrie, golf instructor at the Riddles Bay Club, Bermuda, who had been separated from his wife and their 17-year-old daughter, Martha.

All the survivors praised highly the orderly behavior of the passengers and crew, which enabled the unloading of all aboard the ship in 50 minutes.

One of the many honeymoon couples aboard the Ft. Victoria were Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Hirsh of Brooklyn, who were married Sunday. They said their honeymoon was probably at an end, in view of the fact that they had lost all their belongings on the liner. Mrs. Hirsh said she lost clothing and jewelry worth $1500.

E. K. Wilkinson of Methuen, Mass., assistant manager of the Hotel Hamilton, Bermuda, said women made up more than half of the passenger list of the Fort Victoria and that shortly after the crash he saw many of them crying, but there was no panic, he insisted. He had high praise for the crew, the officers and the men passengers. The men passengers, he said, stood aside calmly so the woman could be taken off first.

Wilkinson said the pilot boat did not care to come alongside the Fort Victoria for fear that the latter would sink and draw her down. After the passengers were picked up from the lifeboats, he said, the pilot boat left, so the passengers would be spared seeing the Furness Bermuda liner sink.

Miss Louise Irish of Amherst, Mass., was with three other young women who declined to give their names. They said they were on the promenade deck about eight yards from the side when they saw the nose of the Algonquin loom suddenly and crash into the side of the ship.

COUPLE ARE REUNITED.

Jack Snyder of 5009 Rosehill st., Philadelphia, trumpet player in a band aboard the vessel, said that the players had lost $15,000 worth of instruments on the ship.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunk, the Salem, Mass., couple, were in their cabin when the crash occurred. Mrs. Dunk went with the women in one of the first lifeboats and her husband waited to go with the men. Unfortunately, he and his wife were picked up in different pilot boats, and did not meet again until today.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Arnold of Watertown, Mass., survivors, registered at the Hotel Roosevelt and immediately retired, leaving word that they were too fatigued to be disturbed.

Calm and order reigned aboard the Fort Victoria during the abandonment of the ship, passengers said.

Today the Fort Victoria, one of the most popular liners ever assigned to the New York-Bermuda service, rested on the bottom of the harbor. She sank three hours after the collision, as the Algonquin and four salvage tugs were endeavoring to convey the badly-listed liner back to port or to shallow water.

State Rep. Leonard Arnold and Mrs. Arnold of Watertown were among the Fort Victoria passengers. On being landed they immediately went to the Hotel Roosevelt.

HUB GIRL TELLS OF PERIL

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard were accompanied by their three children, Majorie, Louise and James. Another Boston couple aboard were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Burton. L. Beeman of Boston, John Bettincourt of New Bedford and Mrs. Charlotte Wooldridge of Main st., Melrose, were other passengers. Mr. and Mrs. Ira Egans of Concord, N. H., were accompanied by their two children.

Mrs. L. W. Fullerton of Falmouth was in the writing room when the ships collided.

Miss Anna McDonald, 19, of 49 Everett st., Jamaica Plain, who makes an annual winter visit to her brother, a Bermuda hotel man, was also among the passengers, as were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hunt of 2A Holly st., Salem.

Miss Marion Russell of Jamaica Plain told how the davit tackle stuck while the lifeboat she was in was about 12 feet from the water.

"If they had not cut through the strands at bow and stern at precisely the same moment, the lifeboat would have plunged either bow or stern first into the sea, and many of us might have been drowned," she said.

Mrs. Mary Pabst of Salem, Mass., was torn from her husband, Randolph, in the scramble to get into the lifeboats.

"I was shoved into a boat while the Fort Victoria was shivering something terrible, and I never expected to see him again," she related after she was landed.

Four investigations were started into the disaster today. The crash caused the loss of a $1,250,000 ship, its $250,000 cargo and uncounted personal property of passengers.

French Beaux Scorn to Kiss Madame's Shiny Nails

Paris, Dec. 19 (INS)—Frenchmen now refuse to kiss the little hand of madame until she scrapes the enamel from her fingernails.

French women thought for a while that the fad for ultra-shiny fingertips, brought here from the United States, would make their fingertips more attractive to masculine lips.

But Frenchmen, it seems, shun the coral-lacquered digits like so many hot coals.

Paul Reboux broadcast over the radio that women "will not even rate a handshake" until they leave their nails as nature and chamois polishers made them.

Whereupon mesdames ask:

MINE HORROR IS INVESTIGATED

McAlester, Okla., Dec. 19 (AP)—Four investigators today were to enter the Old Town Coal Company's mine in an effort to determine the cause of an explosion that snuffed out the lives of 59 miners.

The investigators are Miller D. Hay, State chief mine inspector; C. A. Herbert, senior engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines; William Ogilvie of McAlester, as a neutral investigator, and a representative of the mining company yet to be chosen.

Despite persistent rumors that two more bodies still were in the lower levels of the mine, Hugh Rice, manager, insisted every man had been accounted for.

Rescue work was seriously hampered by cold weather above ground. In the lower levels the rescue squads toiled in a temperature of 120 degrees. On coming to the surface the shock of the near-zero weather left many of them weak and trembling.

Mule Escaped Death in Blast and Gas Wave

McAlester, Okla., Dec. 19 (AP)—Amid tears and tragedy, comedy appeared at the mouth of the Old Town Coal Company mine where 59 miners were killed by an explosion.

Scorning all rescue workers, a gaunt, black mule sauntered out of the shaft, solemnly surveyed the crowds gathered around the mouth of the mine, and then ambled eagerly toward a pile of hay nearby. Onlookers laughed, some with a touch of hysteria.

Rescue squads said the mule apparently was working in the same level on which the 59 men were killed, but somehow resisted the poisonous gases which followed the blast.

Auto Test Simple If You Know the Rules

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

Cheer up, all you women who dread taking the new examination for an automobile license!

It is easy as can be—if you are all primed for the questions about the motor vehicle laws.

In fact, anyone who has studied the little pamphlet distributed by the registry of motor vehicles, and can operate a car with reasonable care for the safety of the public, need have no fear about passing this examination easily.

After hesitating a moment about putting down my real age on the application blank, I recalled that phrase saying a license can be revoked for making false statements in an application, and so I put it down correctly, together with correct answers about my past, including those relating to health history.

FRIENDLY PAMPHLET

Having been given an appointment for a 1 o'clock examination I arrived at Commonwealth Pier frightened half to death over the terrible ordeal which I believed I was facing, and nervously clutching my little friend, the pamphlet.

Could I answer every one of those 81 questions which every applicant for a license must know? I mumbled the answers while I waited my turn.

They are very punctual about these tests and so must the applicant be punctual. Almost at once the kindly man in the cage assigned Inspector Alfred Belger to examine me. No one knew me to be a newspaper reporter.

He motioned me to a chair at a big table and sat down beside me. Opening the pamphlet to the sign-reading test on page 10, he pointed to No. 25 and directed me to read it.

"Speed limit, 15 miles an hour," I read.

"Next."

"Obey the motor vehicle law."

MEANS WHAT IT SAYS

"It means just what it says: congested traffic or obscure corner where it is safer to go to the right," I replied.

"All right," he said, reaching for my yellow application blank upon which he wrote something.

"How old must one be before he can have a license issued to him?"

"Sixteen years," I replied.

"What would you do if you were in a motor accident in which a person was killed?"

"Notify the police, the registrar, and the insurance company."

No matter whether one is a woman or a manthe next question is important and probably no one escapes answering that one.

KNEW HER LESSON

"The license is revoked and no new license can be issued until after one year from the date of conviction," I answered. "For a second offense the license is taken away for five years."

"Good, now sign your name here, and here," said Inspector Belger, passing me a pen. At the same time he drew some colored tags from his pocket. "Pick up the color on which you would go ahead."

I chose the green tag.

"Then he asked on what color I would let a pedestrian pass, and I said, "yellow." Further color tests were as easy.

The sight test came next, reading distant letters with one eye covered. And then I was ready for the driving test, which was thorough, but nothing to be afraid of.

One is impressed from start to finish with the courtesy and pleasant atmosphere of the examination. Certainly no public spirited citizen could object to the questions which are selected at random from that friend in need, the little pamphlet.

I found that Registrar Parker did me a great service in advising study of it before the test, only the answers are so simple and sensible that one might feel that he does not need to study them.

Tunney to Attend Dinner for Carey

New York, Dec. 19 (INS)—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, will make his first public appearance since his return from Europe when he attends the dinner to be given at the Hotel Commodore on January 14 to William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Club, it was announced today.

CALLS FOR AN EXPLANATION

Laconia, N. H., Dec. 19 (AP)—Atty.-Gen. Ralph W. Davis of New Hampshire today demanded of Theodore S. Jewett, Belknap County solicitor, that he explain his recent charge of unwarranted State interference in the trial of four college students in superior court.

Jewett said he would reply to Davis at his convenience and repeat to him the statement he made after the trial. Jewett had charged that Davis' presence at the trial was unwarranted and that the influence he brought to bear in behalf of the defendants was "not in accordance with justice."

The trial was that of Benjamin T. Bartlett, 20, of Derry; Clifton W. Ellis, 20, of Nashua; Benjamin Newell, 19, of Derry, and his brother, Edward Newell, 18.

Merrimack River Is Lowest in 10 Years

Lowell, Dec. 19 (AP)—The Merrimack River was today at its lowest level in ten years, the Department of Locks and Canals reported. Only 1500 cubic feet of water a second was passing over Pawtucket dam, as compared to an average flowage of 6000 in December, and an average dry season flowage of 3000 cubic feet.

Taxes Boost Federal Income 198 Millions

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—Large increases in income tax collections for the first five and a half months of the present fiscal year 1930, on December 17, sent the government income to $198,086,767 more than was collected in the same period last year.

Figures issued by the treasury today giving receipts and expenditures for the 1930 fiscal year showed that on December 17 income tax collections had aggregated $858,428,169, compared with $687,074,369 for the same period last year while the government's total income since last July 1 was $1,685,654,547.

While the $171,353,800 increase in income tax receipts was $11,000,000 more than the decrease called for next year by the tax reduction bill already signed by President Hoover, government expenditures for the fiscal year to date have been $156,078,292 more than its income. The expenditures aggregated $1,841,732,840, but they were $67,469,690 less than spent in the similar period of last year.

Receiver Follows Big Drop in Stock

New ork, Dec. 19 (AP)—International Engineer corp. passed into the hands of a temporary receiver today with the signing of an order in U. S. District Court on the complaint of Bethlehem Steel Corp.

Just before the announcement, the common stock dropped to a new low of $7.25 a share on the New York stock Exchange. It had been one of the most spectacular performers of the bull market earlier in the year, touching a maximum level of $103.50.

Camp Kearny, Cal., to Be Navy Air Base

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—Supporting a recommendation by Secretary Adams, the general board of the navy, in a report made public by the House naval committee, advocated Camp Kearny, Cal., as the site for the Pacific coast naval airship base.

FIGHT LOOMS ON DRY PLAN

Washington, Dec. 19 (INS)—President Hoover's proposed reorganization of federal prohibition enforcement agencies faces a long delay in the House as a result of a split among leading drys over his proposals, it was disclosed today.

While administration leaders expect the House ultimately to back the President in his plans, they indicated no attempt would be made to use "steam roller" tactics to accomplish the purpose.

The chief division among the drys is over the transfer of enforcement activities from the Treasury, under Secretary Mellon, to the Department of Justice, under Atty.-Gen. Mitchell.

The attempt of Mr. Hoover to meet this objection by leaving control of commercial alcohol in the Treasury and giving the Justice Department the job of ferreting out liquor law violations and prosecutions, has failed to heal the split and has aroused new opposition among drys.

As a result House leaders indicated the entire question would be laid aside until the proposed joint congressional committee works out a plan with Gavin McNabb, selected by Mr. Hoover to study the question.

The joint committee resolution adopted by the Senate will be considered by the House after the Christmas recess, Representative Snell (R.), New York, chairman of the rules committee, said.

Snell predicted ultimate adoption of Mr. Hoover's plans, but said it is likely legislation for transfer of activities from the treasury to the justice department will await report of the committee.

The Presidential proposal to leave permit activities in the treasury is believed to be an answer not only to dry organizations but to the National Association of Druggists and industrial alcohol makers. Having accustomed themselves to the treasury's system, they oppose the transfer.

Auto Kills Wagon Driver

Lowell, Dec. 19 (AP)—Thomas Drew, 50, who was thrown from his wagon while driving in the Groton road at Westford, after the vehicle had been struck by the automobile of Thaddeus Strugenski, died today. Strugenski was held in $100 bail on a manslaughter charge.

If You Know Your Book, the Test Is Easy

Alfred Belzer Frances Baird

The new auto driving test is easy enough providing you know your little book. The little book, which is issued by the department of motor vehicles, gives the traffic code in detail and examining inspectors ask various questions concerning it. Frances Baird of the staff of the Boston Evening American is shown undergoing the code quiz, with Inspector Alfred Belzer asking the questions. Miss Baird found it all simple enough, providing, of course, you know your book.

Professional Woman's Club Ushers in Yuletide Season With Luncheon

Plans for Public Health Day Recounted

THE Professional Woman's Club ushered in the holiday festivities with a pretentious luncheon at the Hotel Statler, presided over by the president, Mrs. Mabel Mann Jordan.

Attended by 400 members and guests and head-tabled by an array of celebrities, the second luncheon of the season for the club got a head start on the New Year.

Mrs. Jordan later introduced Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook, who in turn brought the greetings and felicitations of the Commonwealth.

Secretary Cook took the opportunity to urge the women to ready themselves for the approaching legislation hearings, particularly those on the three initiative petitions relative to the repeal of the Baby Volstead act, automobile insurance and the newly proposed legislation on the trapping of wild animals.

The last named petition, resulting chiefly from the efforts of the women's clubs throughout the State, was the cleanest drawn petition, as to the getting of signatures, that ever was called to his attention, the Secretary of State said.

He urged the women acquaint themselves with the three petitions, since they were the ultimate lawmakers of the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, first vice-president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, who was to have been a guest at the luncheon, was unable to attend because of illness. The spirit of Yuletide was beautifully interpreted by Mrs. Carl L. Watson, president of the Boston City Federation, to which the Professional Woman's Club belongs. Mrs. Watson recited several bits of verse, serious and jocose.

Mrs. Watson told of the Public Health Day which the City Federation holds tomorrow, and in case you didn't read my column the day I printed the program in full, let me repeat a few of the details:

The exercises will take place at the Y, 110 Clarendon st., and will be featured by the presentation of a silk city flag by Mayor Nichols to the Boston City Federation. The members and guests are then to be the guests of the city's chief executive at a luncheon at the Boston City Hospital, after which he will personally escort them on a sight seeing tour of the hospital units newly acquired by the city.

To return to the luncheon, Mrs. M. H. Gulesian, chairman of programs for the Professional Woman's Club, accompanied Carl Bauth, 'cellist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in three selections.

Other guests included Miss Marion Brazier, founder of the club, Mrs. Bradbury Cushing, Henry Harrison, Greenwich Village poet, who read his own poems.

HEPTOREAN CLUB

Mrs. Forrest C. Palmer, chairman of literature and history, will present Maud McBarry Tibbetts, who will give a dramatic recital, "The Shelf," at the next meeting of the club, Dec. 28, at 2:30 p. m. in Unitarian Hall. This will be followed by a social tea, of which Mrs. William A. Jex and Mrs. Philip O. Murray, assisted by members of the hospitality committee, have charge. Mrs. Neil McPhail, Mrs. Henry B. Perkins, Mrs. Walter M. Stone and Mrs. Leonard P. Haskins are to pour.

BOSTON DAUGHTERS OF MAINE

The monthly meeting is to take place at the Hotel Brunswick, December 26 at 2 p. m. Mrs. Albert B. Carmichael heads this club. A children's party and entertainment is also on schedule for the meeting, at which Miss Elizabeth Chadbourne will be soloist.

Have you seen the soft, yellowish-tan stationery of this club, with its distinctive pine cone decoration in the right-hand corner?

DORCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

In the interest of the $5000 fund a dinner dance is to take place December 27, at 7 p. m., in the Dorchester Woman's clubhouse in Center st. This is to be the only assembly given since there are many, many other activities sponsored by various groups devoted to the same financial goal. It is to include the senior and junior assemblies of other years and every effort is being made to make it a huge success.

Mrs. E. Rhodes Ripley, chairman of the hospitality committee, has charge of the group of hostesses. They are Mrs. Charles Cummings, Mrs. Henry W. Davis, Mrs. Harry W. Ellsworth, Mrs. Wallace R. Guthrie, Mrs. Charles W. Henderson, Mrs. William Hoag, Mrs. H. M. Jacobs, Mrs. Maurice G. Luce, Mrs. William McCormick, Mrs. Ralph A. Mention, Mrs. Arthur H. Merritt, Mrs. Bertrand C. Richardson, Mrs. Edwin P. Ruggles, Mrs. David Westcott and Mrs. Robert G. Wilson.

DEMOCRATIC DOLLS

Looking forward to 1930, the young Democrats of the Commonwealth have started the wheels of progress moving, that a substantial organization and educational fund may be realized for use in working among woman's clubs of the state.

The first step in this direction will be taken on Saturday at the Hotel Statler, when, under the supervision of Frank J. Donahue, chairman, and Mrs. Colin McDonald, vice-chairman, a Christmas doll sale will be held from 1 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Miss Mary H. Ward, chairman of the sale, circularized friends and members of the Democratic party asking that they send a doll to the Democratic Doll Sale Committee, 38 School st., Roxbury. So when doll purchasers find themselves at the Hotel Statler completely surrounded by those delightful stimulators of fancies and foibles, they will see china, walkie, talkie, baby, grandfather, soldier, Dinah, or dandy dolls, everyone soliciting purchase.

All the leading Democrats are donating dolls. One doll comes all the way from New York from Gov. Roosevelt. This probably will be the envy of all the other dolls. However, there will be a splendid selection to choose from.

It is expected that Senator David I. Walsh and Congressmen McCormack and Douglass will have returned from Washington in time to officiate at the opening of the sale.

Among the other Democratic celebrities whose appearances are anticipated are Marcus Coolidge, Joseph Ely, John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor-Elect James M. Curley, Ex-Governor Foss, Mayor Quinn of Cambridge, Frederick W. Mansfield, District-Attorney Foley and Mayor-Elect Murphy of Somerville.

To the young Democrats belong all the glory resulting from this pretentious gesture in the interest of the party. Added praises, of course, goes to the older women, whose counsel, guidance and experience the juniors are dependent upon.

Among them are Mrs. Jessie M. Ward, Mrs. LaRue Brown, Mrs. Ruth E. O'Keefe, Mrs. John Moors, Mrs. Frank J. Donahue, Mrs. Edward Wise, Mrs. Edward McLaughlin, Mrs. John Donaghue, Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald, Mrs. David Kelley, Mrs. Alice Buckley, Mrs. Richard Walsh, Mrs. John H. Ward, Mrs. Frederick W. Mansfield.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

As in previous year the club will join in the general festivities of Beacon Hill on Christmas Eve. The program will open with a special dinner served at 6 p. m., after which a group of carollers will entertain the guests in the assembly hall.

For the children, a special program has been arranged for Saturday, December 28, at 2:30 p. m., featured by the showing of a motion picture. The activities department, Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, chairman, is carrying out the details.

Of particular interest is the announcement that Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, will be the guest of the club at a luncheon in his honor Thursday, January 2, in the ball room of the Copley-Plaza at 1 p. m.

LADIES' UNITY CLUB

Every year all lend their efforts toward the success of the Christmas party given by the club at the Home for Aged People, Bartlett st., Roxbury, which the Unity Ladies maintain and support, and this year is no exception. The Home Family are anxiously looking forward to the Christmas tree jollification, to which end members and interested friends are daily sending gifts or money that the tree may be heavy laden with tangible spirit and cheer.

Mrs. G. A. Severance is to have charge of the party and is the donor of the tree, to be erected the afternoon of the day before Christmas. Mrs. Arthur W. Hurlburt, president, of course, is giving her able guidance to the affair. Assisting in the general arrangements are Mrs. Klahre, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Keeler, Mrs. Lambach, Mrs. Dikeman, Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Westling, Mrs. Rowley, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Goldthwait and Mrs. Prescott.

Doctor, Ill in Bed, Removes Candy From Boy's Throat

Burlington, Vt., Dec. 19—While ill in bed, Dr. W. G. E. Flanders of Main st. saved the life of John Lavigne, Jr., 2½, who was strangling from a piece of hard candy stuck in his throat.

Knowing that Dr. Flanders was confined to bed the child's father carried the little chap into the physician's house and was escorted to the room where the doctor lay ill.

SCHOOL BOARD WINS OVER GOODWIN

The new board of commissioners of school buildings won a victory over Chairman Eliot H. Goodwin of the Civil Service Commission today when it was ruled that the office of superintendent of construction does not come under civil service.

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner handed down the opinion, on request of Goodwin, who has been at war with the new commission for several weeks over the question.

The attorney-general, however, handed a partial victory to Goodwin by giving an opinion that the deputy superintendents of construction will come under civil service jurisdiction.

Several prominent men have been mentioned as possibilities for the superintendent's job, which pays $12,000 a year. Among them have been Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson and Fire Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman.

The superintendent will be elected by the commissioners, but the deputies will be appointed, at salaries to be fixed later.

New Receivers Are Named for Brokers

Providence, Dec. 19 (AP)—Presiding Justice Edward W. Blodgett of Superior Court today appointed Frank H. Swan, Col. Patrick H. Quinn and Everett L. Walling, attorneys, as permanent receivers of the brokerage house of Mandeville, Brooks & Chaffee.

Robert S. Emerson, who was appointed temporary receiver Nov. 14, when a member of the firm petitioned for receivership action, and H. Stanford McLeod, who with Mr. Emerson had been named permanent receivers, today informed the court by letter that they declined to serve.

GUNS OF BURKE PLACED UNDER MICROSCOPE

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP)—Science's microscopic eye enlarged the grooves of bullets today to determine if Fred Burke, killer and kidnaper, played the leading role in the St. Valentine's Day massacre—most lurid of the murder dramas attributed to his trigger finger.

Calvin Goddard, New York ballistic expert, continued today his scrutiny of the machine gun found in the arsenal at Burke's lake front home in St. Joseph, Mich., to learn if it were the same that fired the bullets found in the bodies of the seven Moran gangsters.

Meanwhile the search for the reputed arch criminal—who killed Policeman Charles Skelly of St. Joseph last Saturday, after a minor traffic argument—was extended to include a possible hideaway with Canadian rum runners.

Patrick Roche, investigator for the state's attorney, had predicted yesterday that Burke would be captured in Chicago by nightfall—but the man whom Detroit police said made a million in ransoms, thousands more in bank robberies, and had killed at least a dozen persons, was still the object of a nationwide search.

GROCER IS SHOT BY BANDITS IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Dec. 19—Complying with a request to throw up his hands, John Kevorkian, 55, was shot down by two youthful holdup men in his grocery and market at 49 Bridgham st., today.

The robbers fled without stopping for loot on the appearance of a woman customer, and Kevorkian was taken to the Rhode Island hospital with a shattered bone in his right arm.

Police flung a cordon of officers around the district and hoped to capture the two men as they were on foot.

Kevorkian, who was held up two years ago, told police he was alone in the store when two men about 22 years old, wearing dark clothing, entered. One of them asked for a package of cigarettes, tendering a quarter in payment.

As the proprietor was making change at the cash register, he heard the command: "Throw 'em up." He turned to see the second bandit training a revolver at him.

Kevorkian put up his hands, and without any provocation the gunman fired. The bullet shatered Kevorkian's right arm, and he dropped to the floor in a faint.

3 Tons of Tobacco Stolen in Chicopee

Chicopee, Mass., Dec. 19 (AP)—Theft of three tons of broadleaf tobacco, sorted and ready for shipment, from the tobacco farm of Silberman & Kahn, in an outlying district, Saturday night, was announced today by the local police.

The tobacco, valued at $1000, was removed by truck, indications showed.

Connecticut state police have been requested to assist in locating the thieves, on the theory that an attempt would be made to dispose of the tobacco among wholesalers in the Hartford district.

Absence of Alice and "Dolly" Causes Stir

Washington, Dec. 19—There was considerable speculation among the capital's social elite today over the absence of Vice-President Curtis, Mrs. "Dolly" Gann, his half-sister, and Speaker and Mrs. Longworth at the State dinner President Hoover gave in honor of the Japanese delegation to the London naval parley.

While the guest list comprised mainly officials and naval officers directly or indirectly conencted with the coming naval conference, surprise was expressed that neither the vice-president nor the Speaker of the House were invited.

VATICAN URGES MORE ACTIVITY BY THE LAITY

Vatican City, Dec. 19 (AP)—Greater participation of the laity in church activities was recommended by Pope Pius in an encyclical made public today.

In the encyclical the Pontiff said:

"We see with immense consolation armies particularly reserved for pacific works organizing everywhere and composed of valorous soldiers of Christ, especially among the young, who in great numbers are gathering to train themselves for the holy battles of the Lord.

"There they find not only force, or means of bettering their own lives, but they feel in their hearts a mysterious voice calling them to become apostles in all the magnificent import of the name."

The Pontiff recommended various groups such as "Catholic action" as being necessary for the participation of the laity in the apostolic hierarchy's endeavors. He said he was never tired and never would be tired of promoting and recommending such organizations.

HOOVER WINDS UP WAR DEBTS

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—President Hoover laid aside today a task he began working upon seven years ago as a member of the World War foreign debt funding commission.

In affixing his signature to the French debt settlement the chief executive had the satisfaction of bestowing the formal approval of the country upon the last settlement of those worked out by the commission for funding the indebtedness of 13 nations. Under them, the United States will receive $13,000,000,000.

That of France included not only funds loaned that country during the World War, but many millions of dollars of surplus war materials were sold to her after the conflict ended. The total to be paid by that country over a 62-year period is $6,847,674,104, of which $2,832,674,104 will be paid as interest.

Just before President Hoover came into office, arrangements were made to compromise the Greek war debt, funding of which had not been completed when the commission expired in 1927.

Four other countries have not completed settlements. Russia disavowed the debt contracted by the Czaristic regime. Austria was granted a moratorium until 1943. A Liberian debt of $30,000 is still on the treasury books, and the Armenian Government which owed this country is no longer in existence.

Cop Rescues Man Overcome in Sewer

Overcome by fumes in a sewer in Milton pl., off Federal st., today, William H. Mahoney of 702 East Sixth st., South Boston, was rescued by Patrolman Illingwood of division 2.

Mahoney was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital, where it was said he would recover.

Mahoney, employed by the city, was cleaning out cesspools. In making his rounds he came to the manhole in Fulton pl., and after removing the cover descended into the sewer.

He was rendered unconscious by the fumes and slumped down into the mud and water. A fellow-worker's cries were heard by Officer Illingwood, who went into the sewer and carried Mahoney to safety.

Robs Man of $50, Gives $2 for Car Fare

Woonsocket, R. I., Dec. 19 (AP)—A masked bandit held up Morris Brenner in the office of the Woonsocket Auto Salvage Company and escaped with $50 from the cash register. He returned $2 to Brenner, a partner in the company, so he could "get himself home."

BLAZING PLANE IS LANDED SAFELY

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—The story of how a pilot brought a blazing airplane to a safe landing in the water off Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, without injury to the ten persons aboard, reached the New York offices of the New York-Rio-Buenos Line today.

The plane, the New Havana, enroute from New York for inauguration of service by the line in February, was making a hop from the Port of Spain yesterday, when one of the motors developed a broken gas line and the wing covering over it caught fire.

Capt. R. H. McGlohn, the pilot, calmly headed his ship straight for shore and brought it down to a safe landing in the water. The five passengers were landed without injury. The flames extinguished and the members of the crew went ashore.

McGlohn reported that the only damage to the ship was the burned wing covering. Materials were being sent out today for repairs to the ship.

McGlohn's passengers were J. H. Edwards, vice president of the line; Mrs. J. H. Edwards; D. Cordan, Traffic manager, of Argentina; Louis Martinez, traffic manager of Uruguay, and A. Servin, assistant traffic manager, of Argentina.

Mounting of Super-Dynamic Speaker Assures Clear Tone

The loudspeaker is one of the most important units in the transformation and reproduction of audible sound. In fact, it is most important, because even though reception and amplification by the power unit be absolutely perfect, all can be lost if the reproducing unit isn't equally efficient in performance. The secret of the marvelous reproducing qualities of the super-dynamic speaker built into Brunswick instruments lies in its flexible mounting. This assures a vibrationless tone of great fidelity.

Five other reasons why customers are selecting Brunswick

1. Transformers and tuning coils are built with great precision. 2. Brunswick electrical pickup faithfully reproduces all records. 3. Every part of the chassis is delicately attuned. 4. Easy to operate; has illuminated dial. 5. Careful cabinet doweling prevents warping.

BEAR STEAK IN MARKET AT $1 A POUND

Careful buyers will find many attractive bargains this year at the stalls. Chicken and turkeys, together with geese and ducks, are worth while for the relatively small prices asked. Most of these are lower than last year.

Geese and ducks seem to be in their element for Christmas and New Year. Western geese are rated at 35 cents, green geese at 45 and mongrel at 60 cents a pound.

Chicken will be a popular dish for the small family. The birds range from 35 to 50 cents. Turkeys are coming back into buying favor, and can be picked up for 35 to 55 cents.

Eggs have dropped from 94 cents to 82 cents. Cold storage ones are priced at 48 cents.

Bear steak is making its appearance at $1 a pound. A 220-pound bear shot in Calais by a local farmer is being cut up this week.

Meat prices are about the same as last week. Fish is holding its own. A very good purchase is filet of sole, for 35 cents, freshly made up every two hours from the best selected flounders.

Chicken halibut has dropped from $1 to 90 cents. Other fish prices are: Spanish mackerel, 45 cents; striped bass, 60 cents; roe, 25 cents; cod, 15 cents; haddock, 15 cents.

A meat novelty has appeared in the form of "peanut sausages," selling for 38 cents. These are tiny ones, about the size of a big peanut shell. They are all-pork.

The recent shortage in good maple syrup has been felt in the market, but today a stall owner displayed some fine Vermont product. Somewhere he secured a "corner" on the market and is able to put it out for 55 cents a pint and $1 a quart.

Imported goods seem popular, especially the English plum puddings. These are $1 for the small and $1.75 for the large, and are said to be delicious.

Something new is the imported individual cheese, selling 12 in a box for $1.25. There are six kinds of cheese—an excellent feature for the hostess who wants something different.

Pork is the cheapest it has been this year. The reason is that the market is flooded with the spring pigs now being killed and dressed. At present, roasts are 28 cents and chops are 35 cents.

Christmas Party of Catholic Daughters

OFFSHORE ICE HALTS LANDING BY WILKINS

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition

(Copyrighted, 1929, by the San Francisco Examiner and Universal Service, Inc. Copyrighted in Great Britain, France, Germany, and all other countries. Reproduction forbidden in whole or in part.)

On Board the William Scoresby, near Adelaide Island, Antarctic, Dec. 19 (via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Examiner wireless station)—At 6 o'clock this evening we crossed the Antarctic circle and are now seeking an air base near Pendleton Bay on Adelaide Island.

Extensive pack ice forced us off shore at 10 a. m., and we have been following the edge since, looking for an opening to push ashore.

The sea is smooth and the packing is a small, thick stream, like sugar cubes floating on heavy oil. A few seals bask lazily in the sunshine and penguins hurry to investigate us as we approach. An occasional sea bird flies by and some tiller and fin whales have been seen, but life is not plentiful.

If it is impossible to make land we will keep still further south, hoping to reach Marquerite Bay.

Our search for a suitable field for an airplane takeoff is a daily disappointment. The spirits of all aboard undergo barometric change with success and failure. Our greatest consolation is news messages broadcast by KUP, our only communication with the outside world.

Naval Parley Girls Are Not Talkative

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—If anyone has a notion that a girl can't keep a secret that person better stay away from the nearly two dozen girls who have been selected to go to Europe as secretaries to the American delegation to the London naval conference.

It's just because "they don't talk too much," as one official described it today, that these girls are going to get the trip. The girls naturally are much enthused, and from their attitude anybody who tries to pump information out of them is going to have a lot of difficulty.

CALLS FEDERAL JAILS DISGRACE

Washington, Dec. 19—Picturing federal prison conditions as a disgrace to the country, Atty.-Gen. Mitchell today appeared before the House judiciary committee appealing to Congress to build new prisons and enact other laws to remedy the situation. He seeks $7,000,000 for the purpose.

The Attorney-General graphically described the overcrowding of prisons, which, he declared, has produced riots and destroyed all chance of reforming many prisoners.

Miners Vote to Return to Work

Taylorville, Ill., Dec. 19 — By unanimous vote miners at Peabody mine No. 7, Kincaid, wiped out the last stronghold of the National Miners' Union strike in the Taylorville coal fields, when they agreed to go back to their jobs in the morning.

City Fathers Honor Premier and Snowden

London, Dec. 19 (AP) Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, received the freedom of the city of London at a brilliant function in the historic Guildhall today.

The city fathers, in a ceremony of colorful dignity, honored ministers of the Labor party for the first time in London's long history. Political figures of all parties were among the guests.

CONGRESS WILL SOON START BANK PROBE

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—After more than a year of discussion in Congress, it appeared at the Capitol today that a study of the banking situation with particular reference to the use of federal reserve facilities in the speculative markets is in prospect after the Christmas recess.

The Senate banking committee has agreed to take up for consideration the King resolution proposing a widespread inquiry into credit conditions at its first meeting after the holidays, probably January. At that time it is believed preliminary hearings will be held with reference to the resolution, which must be acted on by the Senate before an inquiry could be undertaken.

CALL RESERVE BOARD

If such hearings are ordered, chairman Norbeck of the banking committee intends to call officers of the federal reserve board to determine their views.

Leaders of both parties in the Senate have been hesitant to do anything which would tend to disturb what appeared to be a recent delicate situation in the business world. However, there is a feeling that a study of the situation would be warranted after the holidays and there is a prospect that such a study will be sanctioned by the banking committee, subject to the approval of the Federal Reserve Board and possibly with the cooperation of the board.

BRANCH BANKING

Meanwhile, financial circles today were interested in the Norbeck resolution to enable state bank members of the federal reserve systems to establish branches in foreign countries and insular possessions of the United States. The opinion was expressed in several quarters that a number of the larger state banks would avail themselves of such an opportunity the moment Congress enacted the necessary legislation.

National banks now have authority for such branches but state banks do not unless they are nonmembers of the reserve system and their respective state laws permit it.

The Norbeck measure would apply to state banks with a capital of $1,000,000 or more. It was endorsed by the Federal Reserve Board.

NEW ARMOR IS 'BULLET PROOF'

London, Dec. 19 (INS) — An armor plate which defies bullets is being developed in one of England's great armament works. Far-reaching effect on the methods of future warfare is foreshadowed by this development, according to opinion here.

Details concerning the bullet resistance of the armor are a strict secret, but it is understood the new type is so much harder in proportion to its weight that it will afford nearly double the resistance of that now generally used for tanks and warships.

Hitherto, 14 millimetres of armor have been required to keep out an ordinary armor-piercing bullet, and armor more than half as thick again has been necessary to give protection against the latest anti-tank machine guns firing five-inch armor-piercing bullets.

The new specially hardened armor plate will cut these figures by nearly half and promises to revolutionize the mechanization of armies, in which Great Britain has taken the lead.

Letters From Readers

At Least Everyone Can Use the Tub

Editor Boston American:

Is cleanliness getting a knockout blow?

A speaker one evening last week in Boston handling a number of matters in current events sandwiched this remark in illustration of one of his points: "There are more autos in America than bath tubs."

He added that there was one auto for every seven persons and one bath tub for every 20 persons. This does not prove anything, although the speaker was making a plea for more cleanliness and is identified with a magazine advocating this, which is published in New York City. He added that the Bible says, "Cleanliness is next to Godliness." But Bostonians know that the Bible does not say this. It was John Wesley that first used it.

Anyway, it stands to reason that bath tubs are used by more persons than autos. One is common property in a house, the other is personal property. I thought his argument did not prove much.

Working Girl Best Qualified to Marry

Editor Boston American:

I was glad to read that Former-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston has come out with his broadsides against many utterances of Prof. Rogers of Tech, who is bound to perforate the minds of people with his queer stuff over snobs and the working girl.

He claims that the "working girl is not fit to be a wife." Is that not gibberish? The working girl knows how to be thrifty. She has some knowledge of economy, drilled into her in early years in a humble home. She is not a doll or clinging vine, but a real girl, having shown her skill in management in an office or store. She has learned common sense in her dealing with all sorts and conditions of people. She lives in a regular routine in performing her work. She believes in work, is capable of earning her own living, and when the time arrives for her to be married, she has chosen a man with good judgment and can lead him to be careful, wise in his expenditure of money, an experience she learned when working. She is just the girl to marry.

State House Eagle Overshadows Lions

Editor Boston American:

I saw something in the Editor's Letters column of your paper about an oversupply of the statues of lions in Boston. That is very true. I have commented upon this. But if your objector will look at the towering eagle, red in claw, soaring from a lofty pedestal in front of the side of the State House facing Bowdoin st., he will forget all about the lions in front of the Park Street Church.

We all carry eagles on coins and indirectly in our pockets.

RAINFALL IS NO USE TO WELLS

Springfield, Dec. 19 (AP)—Storms of this week have brought rainfall in the Connecticut valley slightly in excess of two inches.

This is expected to do much toward replenishing reservoirs depleted during the long summer drouth, but as the ground is frozen to a depth of some 15 inches, the rainfall will have little or no effect upon the springs because of impossibility of penetration and therefore wells which are depended upon for stock watering in districts removed from municipal supplies will experience no great measure of relief.

Evangeline Booth Home

New York, Dec. 19 (INS)—Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army was back home today after a two months' visit to Japan.

BRIGHTON MAN CITED AS HERO

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—Michael J. Beirne, of Brighton, Mass., today was awarded a citation for gallantry in action by the War Department. The bravery for which Beirne, then a private in the Engineer Corps, was cited was enacted during a battle near Heminel, France, in 1917.

"Private Beirne," the gallantry citation said, "was acting as conductor of a light railway train which was delivering ammunition to 266 Battery under a severe enemy gas bombardment. During a trip to the battery, a gas shell struck the train between the tractor and the first car.

"The two drivers of the tractor were not able to adjust their gas masks properly and were badly gassed. Having accomplished his mission, Private Beirne, although himself gassed, succeeded in carrying both his wounded comrades for more than half a mile to the first aid station."

The choir will be assisted by Miss Norma Patrick, soprano; Mrs. Harriet C. Rice, alto; Cameron Whitney, tenor, and Dr. William E. Bunney, baritone.

Christmas Pudding Flavor Worries Parliament

London, Dec. 19 (AP)—Westminster Parliamentarians are getting rather nervous lest the flavor of their Christmas puddings are not sufficiently imperial.

Maj. S. E. Harvey, Conservative M. P. for Totnes, Devon, has given notice of a question in the House of Commons, asking whether all the ingredients in the Christmas puddings produced in the Commons kitchens are of empire origin.

Maj. Harvey appropriately proposes to put the question before the House of Commons on Christmas Eve.

ANCHOR SAVES POLAR SHIP FROM ROCK

(Sir Douglas Mawson relates today for the first time how he and a companion escaped death in a battle with the high seas in an open launch in Antarctica. The barometer was dropping, but they set out in the launch from the S. S. Discovery to bring back from Heard Island the remainder of his scientific party. Near a giant cliff, the fuel line of the launch clogged, and waves pushed the frail craft ever nearer the rocks. — Douglas tells how the escape was made.)

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON
Commander of the British, Australian and New Zealand Antarctic Research Expedition

Radio by London

S. S. Discovery, Dec. 17 (Delayed) —When in the future we think of Heard Island, two things will always remain in our minds. One was the narrow escape Sergt. Douglas and I had, the other is the legions of birds which make the island their home.

Even in the hours of the night, the birds invaded our hut ashore and the ship riding at anchor. One morning Capt. John Davis, the Discovery's master, put his foot into his sea-boot—or tried to. He was surprised to find a burrowing petrel in the toe, evidently pleased with its ready-made nest.

Unfortunately, the weather has been going from bad to worse. The Discovery, after holding anchor off the island with difficulty, was driven to sea on November 30 in heavy weather. The barometer for the rest of our time here was little above 28. The Discovery hove in sight again on December 2, anchoring in Corinthian Bay.

Semaphoring from the cliff, we ascertained that Capt. Davis was anxious for the shore party to embark and allow the Discovery to depart from these dangerous waters.

FIGHT TO SAVE LIVES

Consequently we decided to make a trial trip with our open launch from Atlas Cove to the Discovery's anchorage in Corinthian Bay. Toward evening, loaded with our scientific collections, Sergt. Douglas Marr, our planktology expert; Prof. Johnston, our zoologist, and I embarked upon the trip. The high seas proved ugly along the reefline and headland, and although we nearly lost the boat, we finally boarded the Discovery.

We decided to wait until morning before attempting to bring off the remainder of the party and equipment. Breakfasting early, Douglas and I set out for Atlas cove, with a shore wind rising and the barometer rapidly falling.

We safely negotiated the reefs in the heavy seas, but when travelling under the heavy basalt cliffs against which dashed the heaviest seas, a clogging of the gasoline pipe line stopped the engine.

Just as we were being caught in a giant wave that would have taken us right to the face of the cliff, our anchor caught hold somewhere, somewhere many fathoms down, for all our line was out. We swirled in the sea, but the hook held tight, and we were safe. With a shout, we set to work cleaning out the pipe line. In 10 minutes, the damage was repaired and we were on our way. But we had another battle on our hands getting through the seas out of the way of the cliff. We finally succeeded.

QUEST SUCCESSFUL

From Heard Island, a course was set approximately east by southeast, hoping by soundings to ascertain how far the Kerguelen and Heard Islands submarine ridge extends toward the Antarctic continent.

This quest was most successful. The soundings were determined by our echo sounding gear, which is working well, and agrees with the Lucas machine determinations. The shallows measured on the ridge showed 350 fathoms at about latitude 59, longitude 78, which is marked by a contrast to the 2000 fathoms on either side.

Warden Authorized to Execute Snook

Columbus, O., Dec. 19 (AP)—Warden P. E. Thomas of Ohio Penitentiary said today unless the State Supreme Court acts on the appeal of Dr. James H. Snook before midnight tonight he has authority to proceed with the professor's electrocution for the murder of his co-ed paramour, Theora Hix, last June.

Robbed

Mrs. Sonia Rapport, widow of 15 Maple st., Roxbury, was blackjacked on the stairway of her home by thief, who fled with her valuables.

WIDOW FELLED AND ROBBED

Special Officers McCarthy and Ferrulle of Dudley st., Roxbury, police station are today trying to locate the man who struck Mrs. Sonia Rapport, a widow, with a blackjack and robbed her of her handbag containing $10, after following her up the stairs to her apartment in Maple st., Roxbury.

The police have a good description of the man, who, according to Mrs. Rapport, was frightened away while trying to break into the house previously the same day. She believes he is the same man who also broke into her apartment last summer and stole $400.

According to Mrs. Rapport, the man was fumbling at the mail boxes when she entered the hallway following a shopping trip. She says she pushed the bell to her apartment and that the man followed her up one flight of stairs after her son had let her in. She says he hit her on the back of the head when she reached the first landing and then robbed her of her handbag and other valuables.

EDISON BOARD VOTES TO DEFER STOCK ISSUE

The directors of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston today voted to recommend to the stockholders of the company, at the adjourned meeting to be held Dec. 27, the withdrawal of the petition asking the Public Utilities Commission to approve the issuance of 76,411 additional stock to the value of more than $7,000,000.

The action of the directors was disclosed today by the company's counsel, F. Manley Ives, when the petition came up to be heard.

The directors, Atty. Ives told the commission, feel that the time is "inopportune" for the stock increase. He suggested to the commission that the matter be adjourned "without day," and the commission thereupon continued the case indefinitely.

Ex-Ambassador's Wife Dies

Paris, Dec. 19 (AP)—Madame Daeschner, widow of Emile Daeschner, former French ambassador to the United States, died today.

ELKS' SANTA CHEERS CITY PATIENTS

The bewhiskered old fellow joined Boston Lodge of Elks, No. 10, at Eastern ave. wharf and accompanied them to the island, where he distributed toys, canned fruit and smokes among the city patients.

A lot of people said Santa resembled John Flynn of the lodge, but he denied any relationship to that member of the Elks. Singers, dancers, acrobats and musicians—25 acts of vaudeville—accompanied Santa and after he had distributed his gifts did their part toward making the occasion a joyous one.

John W. Cussen, esteemed leading knight of the Boston lodge, directed Santa's efforts. The entertainment was furnished through the courtesy of Buddy Shepard, esteemed loyal knight; Joe Crossen, esteemed lecturing knight, and Representative Billie Barker of East Boston.

Says He Set House on Fire 38 Years Ago

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 19 (AP)—Confessing that he set fire to a house at Hanson, Mass., in 1892, to collect insurance on his furniture, Newton Magoun, 63, has surrendered to police here.

"I had rather spend the rest of my life in the penitentiary," he was quoted by police.

Magoun insisted his conscience had been troubling him, and for the past three weeks he had been endeavoring to gather sufficient courage to unburden his mind of the affair.

Police yesterday wrote to the Massachusetts authorities to determine whether a charge is yet hanging over the man.

Magoun told the name of the person from whom he rented, the name of agent and the insurance company which insured his household goods.

Mrs. Susie Baker of Little ave., Pembroke, said she recalled the fire in Magoun's house when he lived nearby, in that town. She said no suspicion was aroused at the time of the fire that it may have been incendiary. It was believed to have been caused by an overheated stove.

As she recalled the incident Magoun was supposed to have lighted a fire in the stove and then went to work, leaving the dampers open. This caused the stove to become overheated, according to the explanation at the time, which set fire to nearby woodwork. He last lived in Pembroke in 1892, moving to Maine with his wife from there.

IRON and STEEL

FEW people realize the important role New England plays in the iron and steel industry . . . Taking the products of the blast furnaces, the steel works and the rolling mills, New England manufacturers turn them into a great variety of finished articles. These include hardware, tools, cutlery, firearms, wire, fittings, pipes, valves, machinery, heating and cooking apparatus and structural material.

Many of these manufacturers are customers of the Atlantic National Bank . . . They find here a group of practical men who are acquainted with the problems and practices of their business. They find, too, a Bank which provides them with modern financial services.

Customers of the ATLANTIC in every industry receive the benefit of similar intimate contact.

TIGERS TACKLE EAGLES TONIGHT

Shikat Is Picked to Beat Hagen in Mat Bout Tonight

BLACKSTOCK TAKES ON CALZA

DICK SHIKAT, the recognized heavyweight wrestling king in New York and Pennsylvania, will battle George Hagen, the Brooklyn "bone-crusher," at Mechanics Building tonight, in what promises to be one of the most thrilling mat battles of the indoor season.

This all-important tussle tops an attractive card of five star bouts arranged by Billy Avery.

Shikat, considered one of the greatest heavyweights of all time, will go into the ring a slight favorite over the spectacular Brooklyn star. Hagen should give the brilliant German a terrific struggle.

Hagen earned the right to meet Shikat when he fought such a sensational duel with Jimmy McMillen here last week. The German will be forced to unfold his famous bag of mat tricks in order to throw the Brooklyn challenger, who is looked upon as one of the toughest men in the grappling game today.

THE bout promises thrills galore. Hagen is just the type of wrestler that is needed to make Shikat look the part of the great matman he really is. In his first and only appearance here last month the German was unable to demonstrate his real ability because George Manich, his opponent, had an awkward style of grappling.

Shikat's $10,000 diamond studded-belt will be at stake tonight.

FOUR other bouts are on the attractive program. In the semi-final George Calza, the Italian idol, and Charley Blackstock, the dashing Texan, will clash in a finish match, while in the third number Hans Steinke and Joe "Bull" Komar will settle an old feud.

GIRL CHAMPS IN SWIM MEET

A brilliant array of swimming champions will battle for premier honors in the city of Boston meet which will be held at the Cabot Street Baths, Roxbury, tonight.

William P. Long, chairman of the park department, will be the referee. He has always been interested in the natators and his co-operation has kept swimming on a high plane in the Hub.

The list of events includes a 50 yard freestyle, closed to residents of Boston; 200 yards freestyle closed to residents of Boston; 100 yards backstroke; 100 yards breaststroke; 100 yards freestyle, invitation; diving, and a 100 yards relay race.

Joan McSheehy of Whitinsville national and New England champion in the backstroke, will race in the 100 yards backstroke event.

Esther Morrison of the Women's Swimming Association of Brookline, New England senior indoor and outdoor titleholder, will compete in the diving contest.

American Glue Team Beats Foxboro, 26-24

Foxboro, Dec. 19. The American Glue Co. team nosed out the fast Foxboro Legion outfit at Foxboro tonight, 26 to 24. McNamee and Downey were outstanding for the Glue Co., while Beattie starred for the local team.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

"FOUR former national amateur boxing champions are now working out," Johnny Buckley remarked to Mr. Boston, "at Jim Toland's Gym."

"Name them," pressed the veteran.

"There's Henry Lamar," went on Buckley. "He was light heavyweight champion in 1926. Then there is Armand Emanuel, who held the heavyweight title the same year; Arthur Flynn, who was the middleweight champion in 1926, and Homer Robertson, who was boss of the middleweights in 1925."

Jack Conway

"What a puncher Robertson was when in the amateurs," declared Al Lacy. "He would walk to close quarters swinging both fists. He won most of his battles by knockouts."

Emanuel dropped over to hello, Mr. Boston.

"Just got in from New York," piped the coast fighter. "I am in good condition and feel that I shall defeat Gagnon at the Garden Friday night."

Lamar then went through a stiff workout with Jack Gagnon.

"A very decent fellow is Robertson," said Mr. Boston. "He is always lending a helping hand to some youth who aspires for ring fame."

JACK SHARKEY, who went through a strenuous workout, declared he hoped Jack Dempsey gets steamed up enough about the boxing game to attempt a come back.

COL. BOB McKIRDY informs Mr. Boston that the fans at the Rawson-Friedman bout contributed $363.41 to the fund for the Boston Tuberculosis Association.

"Boxing fans," declared Mr. Boston, "are among the most generous persons in the world. They always kick in to every deserving charity."

EDDIE HURLEY of the Record calls Mr. Boston's attention to a news dispatch from New York saying that Charley Cardio of Boston, former manager of Red Chapman, has purchased the contract of Tony Galmoto for 10 grand. Mr. Boston believes Charley is guilty of a slight exaggeration in the matter of figures.

"BOB QUINN of the Red Sox," went on Mr. Boston, "is going to Lewiston over the week-end to make an effort to get Bill Carrigan to return as Red Sox manager next year. Quinn still rates Old Rough as the greatest pilot in baseball. Bob is wise enough in baseball affairs to know that the real reason Carrigan has been unable to give the Hub a winner is because he hasn't had the necessary ball players.

"BASEBALL brains on the bench cannot smash out a hit when there is a runner on third and a tally will win a ball game."

Eddie Shore to Go on Air Tonight

One of the most popular hockey players, now with the Boston Bruins team, will be heard tonight from WNAC, in the program which starts at 9:30 p. m., when Sheldon Fairbanks, general manager of the Boston Garden, introduces Eddie Shore to the radio audience.

Shore is well known to hockey fans for his sensational work with the Bruins while his appearances on the ice have been many, his broadcasting experience is brief.

CRIMSON SIX PLAYS U. C. NEXT

Harvard's 1929 hockey team got off to a good start with a 4-0 win over Boston University.

The Cantabs tallied four times in the opening period, and for the remainder of the match both teams went without score.

B. U. opened with an unexpected burst of speed which caught Harvard napping in the opening period. Harvard rallied quickly however and before the tilt was three minutes old Barry Wood drove Charlie Larkins' rebound into the strings.

Johnny Cross Harvard's up and coming wingman took a pass from Elliot Putnam two minutes later for Harvard's second point.

It looked like it was going to be a tough night for goalie Brodberg of the Terrier six, as half way through the first period Wood again took a pass from Putnam for the third score.

Both teams tightened in the following minutes. However, seconds before the first session was over, Charlie Cunningham soloed for the fourth and last Crimson point.

The remainder of the game saw B. U. trying their best to even the count, but the Cantab defense men kept them too well covered. Goalie Harry Ellis of Harvard showed very well in the strings.

The game, while not exactly rough, was hard fought. Eleven penalties were called by Referee Sonny Foley. Elliott, B. U. wing, was the leading man with three trips to the pen. Garrison, Stubbs and Barry Wood were also sent to duress vile for two trips apiece.

Harvard's next opponent will be seen when the Cantabs clash with University Club tomorrow. Great interest is being shown in the match, as the University six has many former Crimson icemen in its lineup.

B. C. Gridmen on All-Star Quintet

An independent basketball five, made up of Boston College athletes, will go on a barnstorming tour up through Springfield during the Christmas holidays, which started Tuesday at the Heights.

The quintet has such stars as John Dixon, Chessy Antos, Ed Murphy, John DiVenuti and John Convery, all football players, on its roster. This team will play five games in the purlieus of Springfield.

Dixon, the All-American end, will play center. He has been starring with the Pere Marquette five this season. Dixon is 6 feet 4 inches tall and there are few centers who can out-jump him.

Antos was the flashy halfback on the eleven. He played on the Salem high school team that won the state title four years ago and has been playing independent basketball while at B. C.

DiVenuti and Convery teamed up at Everett high and have since been playing with the Malden City Club.

Clark Wins First Money in Tourney

San Gabriel, Cal., Dec. 18 (AP)—Clarence Clark, Tulsa, Okla., professional, officially was awarded the $350 first prize today as winner of the San Gabriel professional-amateur golf tournament.

Clark, with his amateur partner, Nick McInery of San Bernardino, Cal., toured the 18 holes yesterday in 63, one stroke better than seven teams who tied for second honors, in the best ball event.

The seven teams who tied for second split the remainder of the $1000 purse among the professionals, each professional receiving $92.86.

B. C. ICE STARS ON PERE SIX

The Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, of South Boston, will be back on the ice with a hockey team this winter for the first time since 1922. The Peres have taken over the Boston College sextet and start practice before Christmas.

When it become definitely learned that Boston College would have no hockey team the Eagle pucksters attempted to form an independent sextet under the name of the Eagles. After some dickering, however, it was decided to wear the colors of the Peres, who have been a leading athletic organization for a number of years.

Joe Fitzgerald, who captained B. C. two years ago and has since been with the University Club, is likely to join the Peres and to act as coach and play a defense role.

The Peres are expected to sign up for a round-robin amateur title series with the University Club and the new outfit, the Boston Hockey Club. If necessary the Peres will be able to get some outsiders to strengthen them for the big games.

Jim Sliney, the speedy Holy Cross wingman, and brother of the B. C. captain, would play and possibly Ed Mullowney, another ex-B. C. star, who was considered a professional prospect until he practically quit the ice sport last winter.

Booth Playing in New York Tonight

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Albie Booth, Yale football star, makes his debut in New York tonight in a brand new role. Albie is a substitute guard on the Yale basketball team which plays Fordham. He is expected to get into the game, although he is not listed in the starting lineup.

TIGERS TACKLE EAGLES AT GARDEN TONIGHT AFTER FIVE-DAY LAY-OFF

By BILL GRIMES

AFTER a five-day layoff, the Tigers swing back into action tonight against the New Haven Eagles at the Boston Garden. The Can.-Am. champions have not been going well of late and are very anxious to get back into their winning stride.

As in past seasons, the Tigers have been playing their best games away from home. They are the greatest road team in the Can-Am League but they have been able to do little or no business at the Garden. Of the six games, the Tigers have played at home, they have won only two. In order to be successful in hockey, it is absolutely necessary to win a majority of home games.

Bill Grimes

Since the Tigers went down to that 5-to-3 defeat before the Rhode Island Reds last Saturday night, Manager Eddie Powers has had them practising daily at the Garden.

Realizing that his players were tired and bruised from recent games, Manager Powers has not pushed them too strenuously. The Tigers have been a busy outfit for the past two weeks, having been forced to play three games in four days weekly.

TIGERS MISS CONTANT

Coupled with that tough schedule, the loss of Ponzi Contant has been a severe blow to the Tigers. Ponzi who has been out of the game for two weeks, with a dislocated shoulder, has always been an inspiration to his teammates, and in the past as now, his absence has never failed to throw the Bengals out of gear.

He has been practising for the last few days and will be back in the lineup against the Arrows in Philadelphia next Saturday night.

In the New Haven Eagles, the Tigers are tackling the pace-makers of the league. New Haven is a veteran team, which is just beginning to hit its real stride. True, the Eagles were knocked off and then tied by Sprague Cleghorn's Reds of Providence but now that Babe Dye, the former St. Pat's and American star winger, is in shape, they are just that much stronger.

Dye was mainly responsible for the Eagles getting a tie with the Reds, for he scored two of the three New Haven goals.

Manager Eddie Powers will start Johnny Louckes, Capt. Deacon Waite and Yank Boyd on the front line, with Eddie Oatman and Reg Mackey on the points and Herbie Rheaume in the nets. The first Tiger line has been out-scoring all of the other Can.-Am. forward trios, with Capt. Waite setting the pace. Waite is well out in front in the race for individual honors, having already annexed a total of 21 points. Yank Boyd is well up in the list, while Johnny Louckes is starting to display some of his last season's form.

Eddie Burke, Clark Heyd and Mills will be the front line replacements, while Bill Regan will spare for both Oatman and Mackey. Burke, Heyd and Mills fought hard against Providence but were unable to get any breaks, some of which should have fallen their way.

EAGLE SUBS FAST

Although Clukker Whyte, Hughes and Eddie Bouchard have the call over Babe Dye, Billy Boucher and Norman Shay at present, as the starting line for New Haven, they cannot afford to ease up, for the second stringers are coming fast and determined to win regular berths.

Such a condition is ideal for Manager Jimmie O'Donovan, for his entire team is hustling and he is bound to get results. Dye, Boucher and Shay are all goal getters,

Salem High Eleven Leaves for Miami Tomorrow

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

WILL PLAY SOUTHERN CHAMPS

BAY STATE folks will give the Salem high football squad a big sendoff when the boys, led by Coach Broderick, start on the first stage of their journey to Miami, Fla., where the grid team plays Miami high, on Christmas Day.

At a meeting of the Salem high school athletic commission, a majority of the members voted to allow Salem high to meet the Southern high school champions.

The football team will leave for Miami, Fla., tomorrow night at 8 p. m. The game in Miami will be under the auspices of the Mahi Shrine of Masons. All the proceeds will go to the benefit of furthering athletics at Miami high school.

Coach Bill Broderick said he would take 17 players on the trip.

According to present plans extra money will be raised in Salem to add to the $2500 alloted by the Mahi Shrine in order to take more players and for entertainment of the Salem boys on the trip.

The team will stop at St. Augustine en route in order to give the boys a little workout before the game and will arrive in Miami on Monday.

In anticipation of this game, Coach Bill Broderick has kept his squad in tip-top shape by having all the boys out in track suits in the gym, going through exercise, throwing and catching a football and running through formations.

Frank Gibbons, former Sharon high athlete and Boston College catcher, is a coach at Charlotte, which school played Miami high last Saturday for the championship of that section of the country.

Maturewich, a guard, is one of squad. Plausky, Blair, and Daley are other boys who are likely to make the first string Cantab five.

The team has no captain now, for the leader-elect Coady, became ineligible when the present three-year rule went into effect, and left high school.

Johnny O'Neil, Charlestown's star back of the grid team should be one of the best runners in the Hub ranks this year. Last season Johnny was up with the fastest of the high school lads, and probably has picked up a bit of speed since the meets of last season.

Tommy Murphy has great prospects for a fine court team at Rindge Tech. Walter Boyle, Tony Sarausky and Pete Ward are experienced and capable basketball players.

In practice sessions these three, and others, show mid-season form. The boys have learned a lot of basketball from Coach Murphy. The entire squad passes and handles the ball with the smoothness of a good college five.

Capt. Fred Schipper of Newton high leads the big ice squad in practice each day. Over 100 candidates are out for the Garden City six, and some good players should be uncovered from this big group.

Ed Allard, quarterback of the Lowell Textile Institute grid team last fall, was elected captain of next year's eleven. Allard had a good season in '29, and should make a fine leader for the Textile team.

Ed Gallucci, Arlington high quarterback this year, has been elected captain of the next grid team. Gallucci is noted as a fine forward passer, and will help Coach Johnson develop a good aerial offense next autumn.

TIGERS BATTLE EAGLE SIX

when in form. Dye was one of the greatest shots ever produced in the N. H. L., comparing favorably with the great Pitre. Boucher canned three goals against the Tigers on his last appearance at the Garden, and he will be closely covered this evening, to prevent a repetition of such an accomplishment.

Like the Powers team, the Eagles are short of defense replacements, Chouinard doing relief work for both Speyer and Himes. But, it is a toss up, as to which club has the best goal minder. The Tigers look upon Herbie Rheaume as the standout of the Can-Am circuit, while New Haven believes Jumping Jakey Forbes to be in a class by himself.

Of the two, Forbes is the more sensational, but by no means the better goalie. Jakey does pull off some wonderful saves, but many are made to look harder than they really are by the midget's acting, while Rheaume is steady, but very effective.

It will be a great battle.

Sonny Meets De Vito

PULLING POINTS OUT OF THE AIR

Carnegie was no match for the mighty Trojan team, and went down to a crushing defeat, 45 to 13. The accompanying photo shows Tappaan, Univ. of So. California, pulling a forward pass out of the air which paved the way to a touchdown a few plays later. International Newsreel photo.

Emanuel Says He Will Kayo Gagnon

HOPEFUL that he will be able to score a knockout in his first appearance in the Hub, Armand Emanuel, Los Angeles heavyweight, feels confident that he will succeed in stopping Jack Gagnan of Allston before the end of the tenth round at the Boston Garden tomorrow night and then continue his streak of conquests by beating either Jimmy Maloney or Ernie Schaaf in future ring fixtures in this city.

And while this popular Jewish heavyweight feels confident of victory, there is nothing of the bragging type about him. He never calls his shots before he makes them in the ring, for he says that it's something that it's impossible to do.

The Californian admits that he accepted this match with Gagnon only as a stepping stone for a meeting with Jim Maloney.

"For you know I once was matched with Maloney," he said, "only to have an injury block the bout at the last minute. And if the truth was known, perhaps Maloney wasn't so sorry as he appeared. Perhaps I can lure him into another match if I win from Gagnon."

And while Emanuel is regarded as an exact counterpart of Tommy Loughran in the ring, nevertheless Gagnon insists that he knows how to beat him. Gagnon always has been a dangerous body puncher and the fact that he is now in the midst of a winning streak may carry him over this dangerous ring obstacle tomorrow night.

WILLIE OSTER, the hard hitting Charlestown boy is looking forward to crushing Arthur Flynn's long winning streak, when they clash in the second ten-round bout on the card. Oster is one of the most dangerous punchers that has come to Boston in many years, yet he is pitted against Flynn, when the Lawrence boy is traveling on high.

Oster will depend upon his wild right hand punch to bring Flynn to the mat however, and this bout should prove one of the most gruelling affairs that has been seen here in many months.

Then, too, the appearance of Neil Clisby, Los Angeles heavyweight against Tony Galento of Orange, N. J. is another bout, which looms up as one of the features of the card.

Galento defeated Al Friedman, conqueror of Big Boy Rawson about six months ago. In addition, he had Big George Hoffman on the floor five times when they last met.

Morgan and Bass to Meet in Ring

New York, Dec. 19 (INS)—Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, today had completed training for the 15-round bout in which he defends his title against Benny Bass of Philadelphia tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

Bass, who has been training in Philadelphia was expected to arrive here today in time for a light workout.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

PRESIDENT JAMES E. DOOLEY of the Canadian-American League is taking the proper stand when he refuses to harken to the petition of the Providence fans against the appointment of Bill Shaver as referee for any of the Reds' home games.

Shaver is one of the best referees in professional hockey and because he has ruled unfearingly and without favor, he has President Dooley and all fair minded fans behind him.

Only the weak-kneed officials have ever passed muster with the Providence fans and any referee who was game enough to stand out there and call them as he saw them, was marked for assault of papers, bottles and chairs. Now, that Judge Dooley is running the Can-Am League it will go tough with any fans detected throwing missiles at officials.

There are altogether too few officials possessing a sufficient amount of backbone to call plays against a home team. "Homers" are the cause of most of the troubles in sport, but unless referees are supported by their league heads, the conditions will soon become unbearable for all concerned.

Probably every manager in the National Hockey League is trying to fathom how the Bruins are going to be stopped. At present, the Bruins have been on the winning end of eleven games which is within one of the total victories scored by Detroit, Toronto, Pittsburgh and the Americans.

In two games, Pete Lepine, who is Howie Morenz' spare, corralled a total of eight points. He scored five goals and one assist against Ottawa and was credited with a couple of assists in Pittsburgh.

Young Cook who is playing with the Chicago Blackhawkes is a brother of Bill and Bun of the New York Rangers.

Bringing Ottawa to the Garden on March 1, it is a great break for the Bruins as well as the fans. [illegible] New York [illegible] 23 the Bruins [illegible] Feb. 17 to the [illegible] During that period [illegible] seven games.

After leading the Canadian Division during the first three weeks of the season Ottawa has dropped to third place. The Senators have not won a game since they slipped over that 1 to 0 victory over Toronto early in the month.

In all probability it was the 3 to 3 tie with Maroons that broke the morale of the Senators. They were leading three [illegible] going in to the final period but the Maroons scored three goals in one minute and 20 seconds.

POPE BESTOWS RED BERETTA UPON SIX

Vatican City, Dec 19 (AP) On the eve of celebration Friday of the 50th anniversary of his priesthood Pope Pius today placed the red hat on the heads of six newly created princes of the church.

The Pontiff was assisted in the ceremony by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state. The new cardinals were introduced singly to the Pontiff who endowed them with the episcopal gown, the pectoral cross, the cardinalate cord of red and gold and the red berretta or skull cap.

The new cardinals are the Patriarch of Lisbon Mgr Emanuel Gonzales Cerejeira, Archbishop Lavitrano of Palermo, Sicily, Minoretti of Genoa, MacRory of Armagh, Ireland, and Verdier of Paris and Mgr. Pacelli, papal nuncio at Berlin.

33 NON-ITALIANS.

Their induction brought the total number of cardinals to 63. Of these 33 are of non-Italian nationality and 31 Italian. The United States has four representatives in the college: Archbishops O'Connell of Boston, Dougherty of Philadelphia, Hayes of New York and Mundelein of Chicago. Germany has four cardinals and France seven.

After he had been given his berretta the [illegible] patriarch of Lisbon read in the name of himself and the other newly created cardinals [illegible] to the Pontiff [illegible]. The Pontiff replied that he was grateful that the Lord permitted [illegible] the college [illegible] on the eve of the golden anniversary of his priesthood.

POPE CITES SACRIFICE.

"When we see that Portugal, France, and Ireland, all Italy and all Germany rejoice with us it is evident that this joy, so extensive and so intense, is the confirmation of our choice," His Holiness said.

The Pontiff added that the dignity of the cardinalate connoted sacrifice and martyrdom, because, as the ritual declares, they must be ready to "serve and defend the church even to the giving of their blood."

The ceremony was attended by not only the entire papal court but by all the diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican State by numerous members of the so-called 'black' [illegible]

Portsmouth, N. H., Dec 19—An attempt to enter the strong room in the basement of the local custom house where $21,496 worth of choice liquor are stored was revealed today.

Paulina Longworth, 4, Does Own Shopping

The four-year-old daughter of Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth and the former Alice Roosevelt is having a grand time buying presents and her own clothes for the holidays.

With true Rooseveltian independence she goes about Washington stores accompanied only by her nurse and personally selects sweaters, caps, underwear and even coats.

Her mother rarely accompanies her, and then she merely looks on. She seldom interferes with Paulina's selections. The little girl seems to have unerring good taste as to color and line and matching qualities. She knows what she wants and gives the clerk less trouble than many a mature shopper.

100 TO TESTIFY ON FILM FIRE

New York, Dec. 19 (INS)—One hundred witnesses were in homicide court today to testify at the hearing of John C. Flynn and Henry F. Lally, vice president and manager respectively, of the Pathe Studios, on charges growing out of the fatal fire at the studios last week.

Magistrate Corrigan presided. Asst. Dist. Atty. Marra appeared for the prosecution and Frederic R. Coudert Jr. for the defendant.

Fire department records of inspection made public by Fire Commissioner Dorman reveal six firemen inspected the building in the last eight months, but none found a violation, although Inspector Bernard Lynch of the Fire Prevention Bureau found violations when he last inspected the building.

William E. Walsh, chairman of the board of standards and appeals, issued a statement declaring that if building and fire laws were strictly enforced in New York city it would drive industry to New Jersey and other outside points.

End of Exile Looms for Daudet

Paris, Dec 19 (AP)—Premier Andre Tardieu intimated today he would recommend to President Doumergue amnesty for Leon Daudet, royalist leader who has been living in exile in Belgium. A group of deputies from all parties except the Socialist and the Communist requested the premier today to permit M. Daudet to return to France.

Daudet was released from prison by his followers who faked a telephone call to the governor of the prison, but the Government avenged itself by exiling the royalist leader.

French Deputies on Visit to Reichstag

Paris, Dec. 19 (AP)—A group of moderate deputies from the French Parliament, corresponding to the center groups of the Reichstag, left for Berlin today to return a visit paid them last year by the German parliamentarians.

The exchanges of visits are intended to help the rapprochement between the two countries and pave the way for an eventual customs union between the principal countries of Europe, in line with the "United States of Europe" idea.

CHAPTER 40.

"IS this a desert? And where we were today is that an oasis?

"No—this is a canyon."

"But you said it was a desert. You told him you wouldn't cook in a desert sun. Well, tell me about the desert!"

Billy's hand shook Pat's chin. In his marvelously clear-cut voice, he plied her with questions. All day long through her violent disturbance the child's questions filtered.

Now, with her ear pressed to the door, greedily drinking in the muffled sound of voices, Pat gave her insistent little comrade brief, haphazard answers.

Why had they locked her in? Would they wait until she slept, pick her up and then carry her to the edge of the plateau?

But she wouldn't sleep! She'd fight! Take up those pliers, lying there. As they opened the door smash down on the gold fellow's head. The other would never have the nerve to murder.

Or she'd pretend to be dead asleep. As Slim raised her in his arms she'd reach for his pocket. He had a pistol there. With one swift, resolute motion she'd seize and fire it—

Came Billy's distressed.

"Oh, you're not telling it right. You forgot something."

"What did I forget?"

"About the mirage. They have mirages in a desert. I never saw one, but somebody did. Somebody told me about them—"

With an abruptness that frightened Pat, with a long heart-broken wail, the little boy cried out. He wanted his mother. He grew frantic with images of his mother. She'd be waiting for him.

His dinner would be ready. He wanted some chicken to eat. And his mother knew all about mirages. She could draw pictures of camels on his blackboard. Why couldn't he go back home? He didn't want it to be night time again.

Pat bribed and coaxed:

"Listen, I'll tell you of Rip Van Winkle, and about a cat with a burning tail."

Finally she won him. Finally he slept.

Pat laid him on the seat. She took the pliers in her hand. She waited.

It was so dark she couldn't see the child lying on the bench; nor even the white blur of his face.

The dark closed her in. It hummed with droning, hypnotic voices. They lulled her. They filled her exhausted brain with a sense of unreality. None of this terrible adventure had happened. She but dreamed. She had never stepped into Guy's plane Monday night. There was no golden-haired child clinging with moist, warm fingers to her hand. She was home in her room. In the lovely Spanish bed. She could see the drapes of old gold and green—

"Lay off that bottle!"

"Aw—cut it—I only took two shots. I'm cold. Lemme in the cabin, then."

"You stay here. I know you Sheik. Don't let me catch you starting things with the skirt."

"Want her for yourself, do you?"

"If I catch you again, I'll knock you cold."

Pat sank with her cheek pressed against the cabin window. Tears rushed from her eyes, and she began to laugh—softly, crazily—in wild, overpowering relief. Tomorrow morning she would be alive! Never before had the mere taking of a breath been such infinite, overwhelming rapture.

From that gruff warning it was clear she had yet time—dear, precious time in which to live. Her devastated nerves felt no terror of this other menace the two men and life might hold for her.

Thursday morning she felt almost happy as she stepped into a clear sun. The canyon walls flung down a myriad of gold and pink and purple banners. These waved on churches done in lovely rose-colored stone; on amber castles and on somber giants. How wonderful to look on this peace and with an unworried heart.

"Are we in the Grand Canyon?"

ELITE FLOCK TO 'NAUGHTY BOOK' CASE

Fair Spectators Refuse to Leave the Courtroom as Evidence Is Offered

[illegible] society women [illegible] refused to leave when warned by Judge Fosdick the proceedings would be [illegible] disagreeable, the trial of two Cambridge booksellers for [illegible] an alleged improper book started in Middlesex Criminal Court today.

The defendants, James A. Delacey, manager of the Dunster House Book Shop, and Joseph Sullivan, his clerk, agreed to permit Judge Fosdick to preside at the jury waived trial although he said he had read the book.

Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell attempted to keep out the name of the book, "Lady Chatterly's Lover," by D. H. Lawrence, adding it might not be necessary to even quote passages inasmuch as the court had read it.

Prior to the opening of the trial, society women sauntering in the corridors with members of the Harvard faculty, were ordered to stop smoking by court officers. It was pointed out that no one was permitted to smoke in the upper corridor of the courthouse.

CASE HEARD ON APPEAL

In the lower court both defendants were found guilty, Delacey being sentenced to four months in jail and fined $500. Sullivan was given two weeks and a fine of $200 was imposed.

Following the lower court hearing, Julian L. Coolidge, professor of mathematics at Harvard and master of the Lowell House, created under the Harkness gift, resigned from the Watch and Ward Society.

His action was generally taken as a reflection of the attitude of the Harvard faculty on the sale of the book. It was contended that Delacey and Sullivan were inveigled into disposing of a copy to a Watch and Ward agent.

When the trial opened today Judge Fosdick warned the spectators that it probably would be at least disagreeable and pointing out that htey were not required to remain. No one left the room.

JUDGE HAS READ BOOK

The court then informed counsel that he had read the book before he learned that the defendants would waive a jury trial.

Attorneys Richard S. Evarts and Herbert W. Parker, for the defense, said they were willing ot accept his services, and Bushnell then stated counsel had agreed with him it would not be necessary to mention the title of the book nor even quote passages, owing to the court's familiarity with it.

"There is another side to the situation," Judge Fosdick pointed out. "The public who are forming opinions on book censorship and other writings which is a frequent subject of controversy these days, are entitled to learn at least the nature of the thing from which they are being protected in the event there is a conviction.

"If there isn't sufficient evidence in the case to enable public opinion to form intelligently in view of the problems coming up of this nature, then this case would not be very effecive."

Bushnell said he had definite views in regard to censorship and felt that a lot of advertising defeats the purpose of prosecution. He did not recommend a star chamber session, however. Judge Fosdick then said he would leave it to counsel, and John Slaymaker of Riverside drive, Dedham, the Watch and Ward agent who bought the book, too the stand.

Woman's Story Frees 'Courteous' Autoist

"It was very easy for me to remember him because it is so unusual for a motorist in these days to show any consideration for a pedestrian."

On this statement by a woman witness Henry Graffam, Lynn General Electric worker, was found not guilty by Judge Edward O'Brien in Lynn district court today of not stopping before entering a through way.

Patrolman David Feinberg halted Graffam at Federal st. and Western ave., Lynn, a week ago, declaring the latter had not heeded a "stop" sign. Graffam pointed to a woman with a small child walking away from the scene.

"I stopped for her to pass, do you want me to prove it by her?"

Feinberg refused and issued a summons.

Graffam succeeded in securing a continuance. Meanwhile he waited night after night at the street intersection until he saw the woman again. He finally saw her. She said she remembered his courtesy and agreed to testify in his behalf.

Somerville Mayor for Better Parks

"The provision of proper park and playground facilities is one of the most pressing problems before us now," said Mayor-elect John J. Murphy of Somerville, at the annual get-together banquet of the 1929 and 1930 Somerville school committees in the Elks Hotel.

He remarked that conditions in Somerville are now different from what they were in the days when a boy had only to climb over a back fence in order to get all the exercise he needed.

The home of Harrison C. Thomas, 65 Lawrence st., Waltham, was entered by burglars during the absence of the family and $21.50 was stolen.

PREPARE GIFTS FOR CHILDREN

Santa Claus is being assisted in tying up his toys for needy children of the South End by Mrs. Harold G. Cutler and 16 other directors of the Boston Children's Friend Society today at 45 Rutland st.

Many other society matrons and girls are having a jolly good time boxing the candies and wrapping 180 or more pretty toys that will be delivered by the social workers of the society tomorrow.

Gifts of clothing are a major part of the work of the society, and this Yuletide an additional 50 pairs of shoes are being given.

The directors assisting Mrs. Cutler today include Mrs. Homer Albers, Mrs. Langdon Allen, Mrs. Thomas J. Claflin, Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Miss Priscilla Damon, Mrs. F. Reed Estabrook, Mrs. George H. Flint and Mrs. Huntington R. Hardwick.

Others whose fingers are tying numerous packages are Mrs. John C. Lane, Mrs. Henry A. Morse, Mrs. Edgar C. Rust, Mrs. Galen L. Stone, Mrs. Charles R. Talbot, Mrs. Charles I. Thayer, Mrs. John Toulmin and Mrs. Richard Ward.

Rattlesnakes Increase in Blue Hills

Commenting on one of the recent additions to the museum's exhibits, an 18-inch banded rattler, killed by Thomas Connors of Braintree, Mr. Smith said today:

"At least 20 rattlesnakes and 10 copperheads were killed by automobilists and employes of the Metropolitan Park reservation along Blue Hill River road this fall. They were evidently driven out of the rocks in the hills to the lowland by the drought.

"The increase in numbers I believe, is due to the fact that forest fires have been kept down during the past 15 years, since the Blue Hills became a part of the Metropolitan Park system.

"On the day that Connors killed the one just added to our museum three or four other snakes [illegible] killed.

"Connors has killed many rattlers in that section while at work and has caught several alive."

Dr. Harold L. Babcock, curator of reptiles at the museum, says persons who tramp or picnic in the woods should learn to identify rattlesnakes and copperheads as contact with their fangs is fatal if not attended to at once by a specialist.

NARROW GAUGE AND 'L' TIEUPS

Narrow Gauge trains and Elevated trolleys on Washington st., near Dudley, were tied up during the height of the rush hours this morning. Hundreds of commuters were late for work.

The Narrow Gauge tieup was due to power failure, and trains were stalled at intervals along the system for half an hour.

A broken trolley wire on Washington st., near Dudley st., tied up both inbound and outbound lines.

The wire was on the inbound line, and in a short time 25 cars were stalled from there to beyond Dudley st., with outbound cars coming to a stop as soon as they reached the circuit affected.

The delay lasted 15 minutes.

The indictment to which she pleaded guilty charged that on Aug. 31 last she transported from Boston to Portland, Me., for improper purposes Eunice Aberle, alias Jeanne Avery, 21, of Bickerstaff st., Back Bay. MANY SPECIAL TRAINS ROLLING STUDENTS HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

WELLESLEY, DARTMOUTH TREK TODAY

Exodus Is in Full Swing All Over New England and From Boston

Special trains are rolling through New England today over the Boston & Maine, Boston & Albany and New Haven lines bearing college students homeward for the Christmas holidays.

Boston College led the procession early in the week by terminating classes, the College of Business Administration at Boston University followed on Wednesday. Other departments of the university will close next week.

Wellesley College sophomores, following an old tradition arose early this morning to close the [illegible] of the upper classmen. The pre-holiday parties and festivities are all over at Wellesley and [illegible] students [illegible] their trains.

Both the Twentieth Century Limited and the Wolverine left Boston in two sections and other trains are carrying extra pullmans and diners.

The Minute Man, the Flying Yankee and the Pine Tree Limited over Boston & Maine lines will run in extra sections for the next two or three days to care for the exodus from the Boston colleges.

Not all the travel is out of Boston, however.

Dartmouth students will come into town tonight, "wah-hoo-wahing" their way homeward in three specials. Norwich students will also board the Dartmouth specials.

Other [illegible] St. Paul's Academy to New York [illegible] Saturday a special train will carry [illegible] students from Williamstown to the West.

On the same day another special will be pulling out of Northampton with Smith students. The first stop will be made at Amherst, where students from both Amherst college and the Massachusetts Agricultural College will board.

Not a few of the students from the New England colleges will take their chances on the "thumb" route, trusting that Boston-bound motorists will give them lifts.

The unusually foggy weather spoiled the chances of any of the students flying home from Boston, although the Colonial Air Transport will stand ready to put extra planes on the line should the ceiling lift before Monday.

FREE TUITION REFUSED GIRL

What Boston allows to army officers holds no interest to the Newton school board. Maj. [illegible] M. Barnes of the Watertown Arsenal learned today when the Newton board denied his request that his daughter be allowed free tuition at Newton High School.

The girl now attends the school, although the family lives on government grounds at the arsenal in Watertown.

Some months ago Maj. Barnes requested of School Superintendent Ulysses G. Wheeler that he be allowed free tuition, but the superintendent refused the request.

Maj. Barnes appealed to the school board and to that body declared that Boston, as a courtesy to army officers who are non-residents, allows them such free tuition for their children.

The army officer told the school board he wished his daughter to attend Newton high school because of its reputation for scholastic excellence.

ROGERS ATTACK ON CHAMBER IGNORED

Secretary Says Anyone Is Entitled to Express His Tercentenary Views

"If any person feels the Chamber of Commerce is at cross-purposes with his plans of the tercentenary he is privileged to express his views."

That was the only reply forthcoming today from J. Paul Foster, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce committee on the tercentenary, in answer to the alleged attack on the Chamber's attitude by Albert R. Rogers, executive director of the Massachusetts tercentenary committee.

When asked if the Chamber would continue its announced policy of standing ready to co-operate with any of the other agencies connected with the tercentenary program, Mr. Foster said, "I was not aware that anyone thought the Chamber would deviate from its policy."

Chamber officials today said that Rogers has attended meetings of the committee, but none would admit the alleged outburst occurred.

Rogers, executive director of the tercentenary celebration, made the charge before the meeting of the Massachusetts Hotel Association in the Hotel Statler. He astounded the gathering with the statement that he had been down to the Chamber of Commerce and "just told them to go to ——," for their lack of interest.

"He did not come down to tell us to go to ——," he shouted. "He came down to confer with us about the tercentenary. We all went over the matter."

OUTLINES PROGRAM

Rogers, in his speech, outlined the program for the tercentenary, and then spoke of the much greater progress made by other cities in the State than has been made in Boston.

"This is not going to be a Boston celebration," he declared, "but one for all the state. The other cities and towns have completed their work, but Boston is the laggard."

Rogers then reminded the men that Mayor-elect Curley made the first move in plans for the tercentenary. He also told the hotel men that all school children in the country were to be furnished with pamphlets telling them about the tercentenary. He said a $500,000 advertising campaign has been voted.

HITS MELLON'S STAND

Later Rogers took issue with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the latter's expressed opposition to the coinage of a special 50-cent piece commemorating the tercentenary.

"This will be truly a national celebration," Rogers declared. "We believe that Congress will, of course, realize that the tercentenary is of the greatest significance and grant us the special half dollar."

Secretary Mellon had been quoted as saying that Massachusetts' celebration is one of a class of events of local and not national interest. Final decision on the matter will rest with Congress.

The Massachusetts delegation in Washington will seek to put through legislation authorizing the coins.

WARNS OF MANY CHRISTMAS PERILS

Children and Grownups Are Cautioned to Use Care in List of "Don'ts"

In a nation-wide drive to cut down accidents to children over the Christmas holidays, the National Safety Council today issued the following list of "Don'ts" for the youngsters:

Don't trip over the tree.

Don't throw darts when other people are near.

Don't leave your toys lying around where others will stumble over them.

And, not to neglect the grown-ups, these "Don'ts" have been issued by the Council:

Be sure the tree is on a firm base, and brace it solidly so that it will not topple over.

Use nothing flammable, such as tissue or crepe paper or cotton for decorating.

Use a step-ladder in decorating the tree. Use of chairs and boxes often cause painful falls.

Dispose of wrapping paper, excelsior, and other waste at once.

Bauer Won't Play Santa for New Chief

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn declines to play the role of Santa Claus. He hasn't any white whiskers and all the red suits in the shoe city are already engaged.

The mayor announced today he will not appoint a chief of police until after Christmas. The Civil Service Commission has certified Capt. James H. Brood, Deputy Chief Edward D. Callahan and Chief Inspector William E. Kane. Each hoped the appointment would be in his stocking Christmas morning.

LAUDS GERMAN 'COMEBACK'

The comeback of Germany from defeat and despair into the front ranks of the great nations of Europe was described to pupils at the Boston Trade School today by John G. Bucher, representative of the Bureau of Commercial Economics at Washington.

"Such feats as the world trip of the Graf Zeppelin, the record-smashing voyages of the steamship Bremen and the flight of the Dornier X are eye-catching front page stuff," he said, "but they are merely spectacular outward evidence of Germany's great technical-industrial resurrection.

"One of the most remarkable signs of the success of Germany's efforts at economic rehabilitation is the splendid condition of the German railroads, which are by the way the world's largest unified railway system, with about 7[illegible],000 employes. The service is excellent.

"Another thing which impressed me greatly is the activity of athletics of all kinds in Germany. I visited several fine [illegible] courses [illegible] many perfect tennis courts as well as numerous horse and motor racing tracks."

Test High Explosives for Rocket Flight

A metal rocket 12 feet long with [illegible] diameter of 18 inch[illegible] be shot into the air early in 19[illegible] by means of exploding liquid oxygen and hydrogen if plans Prof. Robert H. Goddard of Clark University has under consideration are matured.

The new liquid propellants, Prof. Goddard says, have about 50 times the explosive force of ordinary gunpowder and by using these he hopes to impart to the rocket a speed [illegible] greater than seven miles a second, the so-called critical speed which must be obtained for a body to escape the gravitation pull of the earth.

Prof. Goddard [illegible] estimated that a ton of ordinary black powder would be necessary to drive a rocket beyond the region of [illegible] under direct influence of the earth's gravitation, and [illegible] that only about 2 per cent of the powder charge would be effective [illegible] in combination with the higher explosives he is now [illegible] the prof[illegible] [illegible] of [illegible]tation.

The real reason for the flight of a rocket, Prof. Goddard shows, is that the expanding gases of combustion push the rocket itself, hence it travels faster in a vacuum because there is no air friction or wind resistance.

He and his assistants are now hopes to launch into the sky from Camp Devens next year.

He declined to make any definite statement about how great an altitude he expects to attain on the next [illegible]. Anything from a few miles to 50 would not surprise him.

The rocket's efficiency increases with its speed, which Prof. Goddard said he had figured out would pick up an additional 150 feet a second for each second of flight, or about five times the velocity given a falling body by the earth's gravitation.

This means, he explained, that when the test rocket is launched at Camp Devens it will be moving upward at a speed of 150 feet a second just one second after it is started; in its flight in two seconds it will be moving 300 feet a second; in three seconds its speed will be 450 feet a second and so on until the charge of liquid propellant is exhausted.

SENIOR CLASS TO HOLD DANCE

"I would not have you feel that I am in any sense opposed to the existence and continuance of these competitive organizations. I quite realize that the general newspaper wealth is advantaged by brisk competition."

HOW IT ORIGINATED

Speaking of the purposes of its organization, Mr. Noyes said:

"The Associated Press was organized as a mutual, co-operative, non-profit making institution owing its existence to the determination of its founders that the new papers making its membership [illegible] should have a news service of their own, their servant and not their master, the news service to be non-partisan in the broadest sense, to have no bias whatever, whether political, religious or economic, to be as accurate as was humanly possible and to be comprehensive within the limits of decency, a news service whose [illegible] mission was to supply its members and its members alone with news, not views, a news service that would not constitute itself judge or jury, prosecuting attorney or counsel for the defense, but content itself with acting as an impartial reporter.

"This determination was based on the belief of its founders that the prosperity of their newspapers and indeed the safety of the Republic itself is founded on an undefiled news service and their unwillingness to entrust such a terrifying power to any private group."

Because he is a student at Harvard law school, a fine of $5 imposed on Perry D. Trafford, Jr., of Brattle st., Cambridge in municipal court for an automobile law violation was revoked by Judge Dowd today.

SUBSTITUTE DIRECTOR CONTINUES FILMING OF "LA MARSEILLAISE"

STUDIO BOSS STRICKEN ILL

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright 1929 [illegible])

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Dr. Paul Fejos' bravery in insisting that he was well enough to return to work after he suffered a 50-foot fall from a scaffolding a few months ago is likely to have serious consequences. The doctor, in the midst of producing "La Marseillaise," was unwilling to give up work. He attempted to return to the Universal City and as a result is confined to his home under a physician's care.

THE show must go on and Universal is fortunate in having John Robertson on the lot. Mr. Robertson has been put to work to finish "La Marseillaise," starring Laura La Plante and John Boles. As soon as he finishes that he will start work on "The Singing Caballero," which is slated as Mr. Boles next vehicle.

Louella O. Parsons

Carl Laemmle, Jr., in making the announcement about Dr. Fejos stated how much Universal regretted the necessity for continuing the production without Dr. Fejos but it may be several months more before he will have recovered sufficiently to think of making pictures.

LILLIAN GISH is not the kind who ever goes into a rave over anything or anybody. When she enthused over Ann Harding and said she thought she was one of the finest emotional actresses she had ever seen I realized Miss Gish was impressed. The fair Lillian admitted that she did not know Miss Harding, had never spoken to her but that she had seen her both on the stage and on the screen. Edwin Carewe apparently shares Miss Gish's favorable opinion for he has cast her as Helen in "The Spoilers."

WHAT HO! Another jail break story. We are going to know all there is to know about why prisoners leave jail or why they try to leave jail. Mervyn Le Roy is directing a picture called "Jailbreak" for First National and guess who's the writer. His name is Dwight Taylor and he happens to be a son of Laurette Taylor. First National bought this tale while it was still in manuscript form, they thought so well of it and Al Cohn is busy adapting it. Bernice Claire will have the lead in all probability. What with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studying the recent outbreak in jail the movies are [illegible] the propaganda it seems.

MARION DAVIES KNOWN FOR 'HEART O' GOLD'

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

IT has been interesting to note the public attention given Marion Davies on her annual pre-Christmas trip from the Pacific coast to the eastern section of our country. Wherever she has appeared, fans have been quick to recognize her, and immediately she became the cynosure of all eyes. Added to her ability she has a striking personality and beauty, and a rare gift of always being perfect in harmony and charm of attire.

* * *

MISS DAVIES has done a good deal of shopping while in the East; this is one of the reasons for her yearly trip. Undoubtedly the feminine fans would like to know all about her dress, what she has purchased, the styles, and so on. But we have learned a lot about Miss Davies from Hollywood folk, which will be interesting to all motion picture play goers. One fact is, that of all the favorites in the film colony Miss Davies is the outstanding figure; she is the most popular of them all. This goes with the players themselves, and it also goes with the plain people. We have had this expression from many Southern Californians, and women film stars have been just as enthusiastic as the men in according the palm to Marion Davies.

Marion Davies

"SHE has a heart of gold!" We have had this same reply from them all, when we have talked shop about filmdom and movie men and women, and the conversation has come down to a question of personalities. The phrase "heart of gold" seemed to sum up the reason for the quick and spontaneous award of the queenly crown to Miss Davies. For one thing, she is first in charity, and is always in the background in her giving. Her contributions are generous and often the donor remains unknown save to her intimate friends.

Through the year she gives, and at the Yuletide season none in Hollywood can touch her in what is done for sweet charity's sake. When community enterprise collects stockings for the poor children, it is the name of Marion Davies that tops the list of givers, and she fills the stockings with her own hands. Personal interest in such things is a hobby with her, an essential of her nature, as associates expressed it to us.

MISS DAVIES has a most engaging personality. She is warmhearted, speedy in response to calls for aid, is democratic with nothing upstage about her, and has a smile that is sunnily winsome. Back of it is sincerity of character; she is ever just herself. Such are the estimates other stars have given us of her, and we pass it along as part of the actualities that we fans can know and can take pleasure in knowing.

* * *

WE said something about woman's wear. We are going to give you the dress insight through the eyes of one who can talk expertly on the subject. He is M. Adrian, one of the most noted of Hollywood designers of dress. He can speak with authority, and here is what he says: "Miss Davies is at home where there is life. One is more apt to find her participating in the fun of some sports contest than appearing as a spectator. For this reason her sports clothes have an unrestrained freedom about them. One always feels that her clothes have a buoyancy and lightness and her continuous activity makes them a very legitimate part of her wardrobe.

THIS lack of artificiality is reflected by the simplicity of all her personal clothes, her afternoon frocks being soft without being fluffy, and feminine without being sickeningly sweet. It gives her every costume a genuine quality that is noticable, and whenever clothes attract attention they are bound to be copied.

"One of the delights of working with Miss Davies is her enthusiasm and understanding of clothes.

It will be possible with Miss Davies to make clothes that are quite practical for girls of her type to be influenced by. Being real herself the clothes will not be too far fetched or too dramatic to be adapted to your own wardrobe.

"As she is quite American in her manner and appearance, the clear-cut, direct wardrobe is sure to be well suited.

"She is, perhaps, more essentially the American girl at her best, than anyone we have. Her enthusiasms, taste and bearing all make her clothes right. You are safer in choosing her gowns as models for your own than most stars, because she is very apt to look on the screen like she does off. Many stars have a tendency to be an entirely different personality when on the screen than off. Too ultra on and not ultra enough off. Therefore, Miss Davies is a happy compromise.

So, if your type is the Davies type, you are comparatively safe in copying."

LENS WITH EAR AN EXACTING TASKMAKER

NOTHING that a playwright can write is too good for the movies, according to Owen Davis, noted playwright. He further states that those playwrights who have the idea that to write for talking pictures it is necessary to write junk, are mistaken and with a background of some 250 plays produced, Davis believes he is qualified to make such a statement. He was author of several film stories recently seen at the new B. F. Keith's.

"Writers for the movies," he said, "should realize that a story must be interesting, not philosophical. Showmanship is an important thing, without which no movie or play is good, no matter how grand the philosophy. A patron, buying a ticket at the box office, has a right to expect entertainment no matter how highbrow or arty the production pretends to be.

"A great need of both pictures and plays is simplicity. There is too much tendency today," Mr. Davis states, "to write out one's philosophy without wondering whether it makes interesting entertainment.

"When I return to the coast one of my duties will be to emotionalize and to humanize talking pictures. The Fox Movietone people are anxious to have their productions more human than ever before because of the flexibility of the camera and microphone.

"It is no longer necessary rigidly to confine players within four walls and have them stand still so that the microphone can catch the lines they speak. Action is the prime factor, not dialogue, in talking pictures of today."

Mr. Davis figures that he has written some 20,000,000 words. He does all his work in longhand, using a pencil. When the script is completed he hands it to his secretary who deciphers his closely written words. Although this method of writing seems laborious and makes one wonder how he could be so prolific Mr. Davis prefers it to writing on the typewriter. He used to be a fair typist and had a knowledge of shorthand.

SAME DRESS IS WORN 2 YEARS

JANE DALY, who plays Sonia, the principal feminine role in "The Mysterious Island," at Loew's State, wore one dress for more than two years in the making of this film. The reason for this was that the first scenes were photographed more than two years before other scenes.

The "two-year" dress is a hand embroidered French crinoline creation of the period of 1845. It was imported by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer from France for this particular picture because of its exceptional technicolor photographic values.

Miss Daly came into motion pictures as Jacqueline Gausdon. Because few of her friends ever pronounced or spelled her name correctly, despite the fact that it is of Colonial American origin, she became Jane Daly when she accepted the leading feminine role in "The Mysterious Island."

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

New York, Dec. 19.

WELL, if your Christmas shopping will stand an interlude, it's about time to draw up a chair and discuss the big theatrical week just at hand. With the inclusion of Chris Morley's latest revival venture, "The Blue and the Gray," at the Hoboken Rialto, the list now numbers nine, and among them all there must be something that will make you forget all the money you've spent on mufflers for Aunt Emmy and polka dot ties for Uncle Will, who probably doesn't even wear tie.

Saturday Grace George, in "The First Mrs. Fraser," at the Playhouse.

In addition, of course, there is the Fred Keating-Albert Carroll fortnight starting Sunday at the Forty-ninth Street, the presentation of "Robin Hood" at the Casino on Monday and Ruth Draper's annual engagement, beginning on Thursday at the Comedy.

"Amos 'n Andy" of Radio Fame Coming to Met Stage

Those renowned radio personages, "Amos 'n' Andy," familiarly known to thousands because of their peculiarly entertaining humor heard on nation-wide broadcasting hookups, are coming to Boston to appear in person on the stage of the Publix Metropolitan for the week beginning January 9. Persons who have followed their radio progress so that they seem like actual acquaintances will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing them at close range.

SHOWERS AND SUNSHINE IN MOODS OF LOVE

Days of Courtship Are Not Altogether Unclouded

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and [illegible]

Beatrice Fairfax

ANYONE, old [illegible] ever been [illegible] days of courtship [illegible] unclouded [illegible] especi[illegible] of [illegible] love [illegible] much [illegible] weather [illegible] moment [illegible] clouds of ecstacy, the next in depths of despair. Fortunately, in due time, love that is real and founded on suitability, settles down to the calm peace and joy of those who doubt not because they know. Courtship, despite small tempests, lea[illegible] and security of [illegible] April merge [illegible] finds [illegible]

Sally at present [illegible] the April of [illegible]

"Dear Mrs. Fairfax [illegible] "Yes, I am [illegible] your [illegible] help you give me will be greatly appreciated.

"For the last [illegible] I have been going about [illegible] boy whom I have known for [illegible] a year. He is twenty-three and I am twenty-one.

"A few nights ago we went out with another couple and on the way to our destination [illegible] friend acted [illegible] On our way back I began to tease him a little, as I [illegible] and unlike himself, he became angry with me.

"He drove [illegible] tance [illegible] hardly [illegible] read [illegible] good [illegible] other [illegible] I should [illegible] teased him."

"He lives quite far from my home and I never see him [illegible] he has a date with me so I [illegible] have to write to him. I sure would like for him to come back. I have lost all interest in other things. SALLY."

[illegible] of age [illegible] friendship if you can, Sally, and I will gladly do all I can to [illegible]

[illegible] I can tell exactly why your friend became [illegible] he doesn't want to become too [illegible] with you. There is a chance that he may have become attracted to another girl.

[illegible] possibilities, but [illegible] best to face them honestly. [illegible] deep. [illegible] his interest does shift from one girl to another just as a girl may meet a young man she met six weeks ago [illegible] attractive. Don't [illegible] too seriously.

Only a few days have elapsed according to your letter since your [illegible] again. Before the [illegible] he may have [illegible] written, and the emotion [illegible] have passed over, [illegible] weather. I hope so! If not I suggest that you follow your own [illegible] which I think is good. Write him a short friendly little note. Ask him to come to [illegible] setting a definite time, or [illegible] write you and suggest a time [illegible] because you have a message for him.

You can tell him, Sally, much more satisfactorily than you can write him how sorry you are that you carried your teasing too far and hurt him. You can promise not to be so thoughtless again.

After that, if you see he is drifting away, you will have to let him go and may as well do so good naturedly. But I hope your friendship [illegible] always, [illegible] Don't [illegible] but the indifference [illegible] sincere and cheap. Just be a good friend, a kind, considerate, 50-50 wholesome friend and give romance a chance to grow. Then I think you will find that April showers soon give way to sunshine!

"Such Is Life" -:- -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

SUCH, when you see her limned, is the face of Life—Madame Life. She is two-faced. One face is a mask, and beneath it is her real one. Our terrible difficulty in this world is to find out, each of us, which is her true face. I think, I hope, I believe that her true one is the happy one, the beautiful one—smiling, to-be-believed-in, sunny, good, worth-having, gay! I HOPE so—for you as well as me. And that the perishable mask, the passing, false-face that you see is just an aspect, not a reality. The papier-mache covering for a sad space, the warm, sweet countenance of LIFE.

I have made the tragic mask she wears ugly—not the terrible but beautiful face that is sometimes put upon the poetic pictures of "Grief." For real grief, real fear, fear of poverty, disgrace, leaving a beloved child with no money and no one who can be trusted to love and understand it, fear for the work that keeps you, all the sadness and pain that life sometimes shows herself in, are NEVER beautiful! Pain and fear and fear and grief and disillusionment are ugly, and so I have put on the mask's face ugliness, mixed with the paint, the makeup and the sorrow of the clown. Tragic—but ugly. On Life's other face—you remember, we hope it's the real one—is color, beauty, gaiety, sparkle, value; and she is crowned with roses for the perfume and the sweetness of life.

All the way along his highway man encounters, with each shock of change and adjustment, this terrible problem; which is Life's true face? Is she worth the having, fair and candid, or gloomy, ugly and untrue? What is she?

A baby first born into the light and air objects strenuously to the change in his Paradisial condition of warmth and food and quiet with no smallest effort on his tiny part. For a little space he thinks life in the world a fearful disappointment, a thing of noise, bright lights and effort; and he tells you so!

Again the small child who first has to do "as others say," who first faces that awful moment when life is discovered to be not all play and a fellow has to study a book or two, or "practice"—fiendish word! who finds that it sometimes rains when a picnic is on the calendar, that the world bucks you and does not always give you your way. Another rough place in the road where Life dimly shows her face to be not always rose-colored and rosy. Poor child, to find she HAS another face is sorrow!

The youngster hears the word, "work," along with his name, being said at his house, or hers, seriously, and feels a dim terror of unknown things, as if he were already far from home, unloved. People do not always tell the truth—people one loves, even! Nobody understands one—everyone expects so much—childhood is behind. Another change. Another glimpse of Life's troubled face. Another struggle, another adjustment.

From then on the grown-up is a warrior fighting for his faith in a lady! To prove to himself the beauty of her face. The beauty of LIFE who shocks him over and over again with an unlovely or, at least, not perfect visage. There in the word, "perfect," is his trouble, from the little boy to the old man, he expected her to be perfect, and, alas, Life is very human.

That one who battles along through many spots common to us all, where Life's beauty seems the false-face, her mask of disillusion the real one, and comes out triumphantly sure that she's after all a lovely thing, wholly desirable, has made a success of his own particular war. He's won it!

Get Fun Into Your Life

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

Dr. L. E. Bisch

FUN is as essential to health as are proper food and digestion. In fact, when your digestion is satisfactory you tend to joke and often you try to be funny.

Neglect the fun element of your life and you become morose, disinterested and pessimistic. Many men and women have lost their ambitions that way.

Foster the fun element in your life and it peps you up and actually creates energy that is useful for your routine activities.

Perhaps you will claim that you have no spare time for fun, that you have difficulty enough accomplishing all you should, besides getting in your necessary sleep in the 24 hours.

Well, you may claim that, but your claim will not stand the acid test of investigation.

If you haven't time for fun create it!

Cut something out if necessary! Eliminate it for the time being anyway, and get some fun! Soon you will be so refreshed because of the fun that no difficulty will be found in resuming the neglected work and squeezing it in without strain.

Whether you be rich or poor, a man or woman of responsibility and care, or one whose duties and troubles are minimum, take a certain amount of time each day and waste it! It will not be actually wasted, but you'll think so at first.

After a while you will consider it the most valuable waste you ever indulged in.

What kind of fun do I recommend? Any kind!

Any activity that will take you out of yourself, will make you happy, will make you laugh, is fun!

Drama, music, vaudeville, [illegible] pictures, dancing, light reading, pursuit of hobbies, golf, even clay pigeon shooting, baseball, football, skating, gardening, bee culture, horseback riding, automobiling, mountain climbing [illegible] are the kinds of fun that occur to me, the kinds I know many [illegible] enjoy.

If your pastime carries physical exercise with it, so much the better. But here I am not stressing recreation as much as I am stressing fun. There is a distinction as well as a difference between recreation and fun.

If you take it with pleasure and laughter, it's the best kind of fun.

But fun you must have, even if it be no more than reading the daily comic strips.

The Truth

ABOUT THE EXCITEMENT OF CHANGE

By ELINOR GLYN

Elinor Glyn

GIRLS, you may [illegible] yesterday I was [illegible] talking of golden wedding[illegible] would you not [illegible] you were going to pass 50 years with your dear love than experience to have a [illegible] or two of wa[illegible] devotion, then a year or two [illegible] disillu[illegible] disgust [illegible] in the cou[illegible] and the fever [illegible] fight for a[illegible] money!

Then perhaps a new mate and then the same disillusion again. Finally the desolate picture of yourself with all your fine senses deal[illegible] beginning to grow too fat or too thin!

You may answer that you would prefer the excitement of change even to the other picture of solid bliss. Well, then, at least try to make yourselves so attractive that each change lands you in a better situation.

Try to acquire grace and polish so as to attract the best kind of man. Try to cultivate your critical [illegible] so that you may know worthwhile things when you see them [illegible] personality, [illegible] you may possibly [illegible] interesting life.

Home-Made Kitchen Gifts

Martha Lee

NO long discourse on the [illegible] of Christmas giving need be written. It's fun to give if you can afford it! But a large part of that elusive quality of Christmas known as "Spirit" is lost when the appropriate gift exceeds the contents of your purse. Agreed?

Gifts from the kitchen, tidily wrapped and Christmasy as holly wreaths, may be [illegible] for [illegible] 15c or [illegible] as [illegible] food [illegible] made [illegible] are ap[illegible] the [illegible] and wo[illegible] find anything more personal [illegible] with your own [illegible]

CHRISTMAS CONSERVE

A half pint jar of Christmas Conserve, tied in a gay wrapper, the glass jar decorated with sealing wax in a simple [illegible], will be gratefully received by the boarding-house [illegible].

Place pitted dates in a large saucepan. Examine cranberries, rejecting soft fruit and removing stems. Wash berries and add together with [illegible]. Simmer mixture for [illegible] [illegible] the cooked fruit through [illegible], add sugar and stir [illegible] low flame until sugar is [illegible]ed. Cook mixture until [illegible] (about 15 minutes). Fill small sterilized jars with the hot mixture and seal immediately. [illegible] recipe makes four half pint jars.

SWEETS OF NOEL

Miss Pat -:- Thrilling Romance of the Airways

"Listen, girlie—see that hump—little slope down there? Don't take the kid on any crazy rambles. If you want to die, help yourself. Leave the boy here. Get that? Plenty of room for exercise this side of the gulley."

He went back to the plane. Now both men worked to repair the wing. They stayed at it the whole day.

And the whole day Pat played with the child. She had to be a cat, a bear, a traffic policeman. They found tunnels and caves.

The little boy listened in awe when she told him that water rushing for a thousand centuries had hewn out this rock.

"How long is a century? Where did the water come from? Who made it rush down here? Tell it again. You start at the beginning and tell it all over!"

"Ah," thought Pat, thrilled by the child's solemn attention, "how Barbara Pryce must love this little hand of yours on her cheek, how she must adore your eyes, dark and beautiful and full of dreams—you darling little thing—"

Once as they talked, Ace came and sat by Pat's side. His hand closed lightly on her forearm. He ran his palm over her elbow, up to her shoulder.

She said, bored:

"I've another date at present!"

"[illegible] be a damn little fool."

"Keep your mitts off me. And remember it!"

"See here, Pat, we can afford to be a little kind to each other—stuck here like this. We're not going to get out . . . realize that? Do you need to be so high hatty? You'll do well to play ball with me, Pat."

"There comes your partner, Mr. Ace."

"You devil! You get that, do you?" his dark eyes regarding her with admiration. "We can outfox him!"

For the rest of the day, his eyes wooed her. They were warm, passionate, almost threatening. He sat next to her when they ate. When it grew dark, his hand sought hers.

Friday it was the same. She kept within sight of Slim. Once he seemed to notice her suppressed alarm. And once he came up as Ace talked to her and said with throttled rage:

"Get going—we need water. There's a spring down there somewhere. Find it!"

Saturday morning found the two men at swords' point. They skimped with the food. They seemed expectant, overwrought—all on edge.

At noon Slim went into the cabin. He put the radio tubes in his ears. He sat like this for an hour and a half. He was hoping perhaps for news—for some word? Would flashes from Los Angeles—from San Francisco—reach him here?

He came out about half past one. His eyes were fevered. The cool, scornful mouth had a ripple of triumph. He walked up to Ace. Pat heard him say: "O. K."

Ace sprang vividly upright. Then the two men walked to a distance and for a long while talked. They were both greatly excited.

They parted. Ace went down over the plateau as he had gone before when he searched for a path outward. Slim began to work on the plane.

But his whole demeanor was changed. He worked flamingly, as though his very zeal would make the damaged wing whole again.

Something had happened. Some word had been received that made them burn wildly for release.

Sunday they found a spring. And Sunday Ace came home from an all-day tramp in a state of charging excitement.

Late that night—hours after Pat had settled with Billy in the cabin, she heard them talking. Their voices came thickly—smugly as though they had been drinking. Now and then they were quite distinct—carelessly loud—then they would whisper still more audibly:

"Shshsh!"

Slim said:

"Do you think it leads out?"

"I'll make sure tomorrow. God, if anything goes wrong now with $20,000 cold in our hand. Suppose he gets impatient?"

"Gonna take the skirt along?"

A soft curling laugh—then a sly "Shsh-h! Yes take her give them the rope to hang us . . ."

A muttering pause—then an odd sound as though someone were crying.

"It's murder!"

"And what else is it to hand the kid over—you promised that!"

"Is he gonna bump the kid off—"

"Wash it to ush? We got the dough!"

Three-Minute Journeys About the World

By TEMPLE MANNING

WE have visited Madrid and Seville, two of Spain's great cities, so today let us go to the eastern littoral where we may find Barcelona, the gem of Spanish seaports.

The city of Barcelona is divided into two parts—the old city and the new city. Through the old city, which is the main commercial and industrial section of this Mediterranean metropolis, runs the Rambla, the main thoroughfare. Here are many of the larger commercial houses of the city, but one needs only to wander a few blocks on either side of this street to find the narrow dark streets of the oldest part of the city. Here the old houses have overhanging balconies and all the touches of ancient Spain—windows covered with gratings of the finest wrought iron, doorways bearing the crests of old Catalonian families, the "marks" of the first merchant families of Barcelona.

The new city is known as the Ensanche. It is traversed by some of the finest boulevards of all Spain—if not Europe. Among them are the Paseo de Gracia, Calle de las Cortes, Paseo de Colon, and the Avenida de Alfonso XIII. To walk along these beautiful boulevards is a delight and a never-ending experience. Both have their palm-lined walks for pedestrians while an endless stream of traffic rolls along the driveways. Smart shops line either side.

Barcelona is the capital of the old Principality of Catalonia, embracing a huge section of terrain form the Pyrenees to the Mediterranean. And throughout this whole country there are many places the tourist may well visit. One of these is the Monastery of Montserrat, about forty-five miles from Barcelona. The monastery is perched in the side of the mountain some 3800 feet above sea-level. Its solid walls, pierced by its rows of windows, look out over the lower country. This monastery is one of the most celebrated in all Spain.

If we leave Barcelona and follow the coastline of the Mediterranean southward, we soon come to Tarragona, one of Spain's most historic spots. This city, right on the seacoast, was known in the time of the old Roman Empire. It is spoken of in the writings of Martial and Pliny (although then it was called Terraco.) In it are to be found the Portal de Bara, a Roman triumphal arch, and the Sepulchro de los Escipiones, said to be the tomb of Publius Cornelius Scipio, the Roman general.

Other spots one should visit are Gerona and Lerida. It is impossible to cover Catalonia in the space of a short newspaper article. One can spend months trotting around this northeastern part of Spain. And it would be a month well spent. Put Catalonia on the list of places you are going to visit!

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Elsie Robinson

A NOBLE phrase came out of the late war—"THEY SHALL NOT PASS!"

That phrase lifted men out of demoralization—tightened their strength—shot them through to victory.

IT CAN DO THE SAME FOR YOU.

Your life is as truly a battlefield as was Verdun, but you face indefinitely more dangerous foes than the Allies ever faced. Their foes were men and bullets and gas. Deadly as was that combination, it cannot compare with the viciousness of your enemy—THE ENEMY OF YOUR OWN THOUGHTS.

The most malicious thing you will ever have to face in life lies within you—in your own mind—in the thoughts you allow to enter and generate in your own mind. You don't like to acknowledge that. You like to blame your bad luck on outward circumstances. But actually the cause for most of your grief lies within yourself. LIES IN THE THOUGHTS YOU FEED YOURSELF.

Cowardly thoughts . . . conceited thoughts . . . suspicious, vindictive hateful thoughts . . . thoughts of vain grief and vain remorse . . . jealous and envious thoughts . . . self pitying thoughts . . . and, above all, SELF EXCUSING thoughts—these are the real forces which undermine and frustrate your life.

"But I can't help thinking," you say.

Perhaps not . . . BUT YOU CAN HELP WHAT YOU THINK.

You have as much ability to decide what you will think as you have to decide what you will eat or wear or do.

You can definitely say "I WILL think this . . . I WILL NOT think that." And, having said this, you can do it. That power to control thought is as truly given to you as the power to open or shut your mouth, sit or stand, run or walk.

YOU CAN SHUT YOUR MIND AS SURELY AS YOU CAN SHUT A DOOR. AND YOU SHOULD SHUT YOUR MIND TO MANY THOUGHTS WHICH YOU NOW ALLOW TO ENTER.

Take a cross section of the thoughts which are filling your mind at present. Look them over honestly, courageously. Decide which thoughts are doing you good . . . which aren't. That will be hard, for some of our most destructive thoughts had a noble beginning. The grief over a dead child . . . remorse over past folly . . . these thoughts were sacred at their source. BUT THEY CAN CLOG LIFE . . . THEY CAN WASTE AND DEMORALIZE YOU . . . AS SURELY AS THE MOST EVIL SPECULATION.

Put them away from you. Deny them entrance. SAY — "THEY SHALL NOT PASS!"

Then stick to it!

Personal Sentiment

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. My mother died in June and would like to know if it is proper for me to give presents at Christmas, or to send cards?

2. If I receive them, how am I to return a present? MISS D.

THIS depends entirely on how you feel about making Christmas gestures. Your friends will, of course, want to have you do exactly as you wish. There isn't any reason why you shouldn't send presents to your very close friends if you wish, and cards to perhaps a slightly larger group of friends. But I suggest that you choose cards of informality, and appropriate wording. That is, don't have your cards of the too "merry" type, but restrained, as is suitable to the situation.

2. "Return" your appreciation for the gifts that will be sent you by your firends. That is, don't worry about not giving presents, if you don't find it in your heart to give them, simply write charming notes of appreciation and gratitude for the thoughtfulness of your friends.

HUB VIOLINIST IN CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

HARRY MELNIKOFF, violinist, played a program at Jordan Hall last night before a friendly audience. This young man—we are told he is but 18—is said to have received most of his training in Boston, and to be living now in New York.

He chose a typical debutant's program, beginning with the Handel Sonata in E major, continuing with the Saint-Saens Concerto in B minor, and ending with a miscellany of four short pieces.

It was unfortunate, so far as the violinist was concerned, that he should have happened upon a concerto that Jacques Thibaud played so beautifully with the Boston Symphony Orchestra a few weeks ago. It was doubly unfortunate, since Melnikoff is at present not equipped to give a living performance of this work, especially with the handicap of only a piano accompaniment.

He has a working, though by no means brilliant technic, a none too sure intonation, tone generally with sufficient body. On the musical side, he has an emotional flare for the piece he is rendering, uncertain rhythm, with a tendency to hurry, a large but unvaried "style." At best—and we assume that he was nervous—he needs rigorous musical discipline.

LEAGUE GIRLS AID CENTER

Junior League girls will have an active part in the proposed New England medical center, Frank E. Wing, director of the Boston Dispensary, told members of the Junior League, who have been actively engaged during the past year in volunteer work at the dispensary, at their annual meeting.

When plans for the combination of the dispensary, the Boston Floating Hospital and the Tufts Medical School in a single medical center are consummated, Junior League workers will have an opportunity to carry on their activities on a larger scale, according to Wing.

The dispensary will continue to administer its laboratories, operating rooms, X-ray rooms and pharmacy, but these services will be enlarged so that they will be available for the use of the entire medical center.

Shorter Hours for Pupils Sought

Chatham, Dec 19—School principals, as a rule, are none too popular among the pupils. But Principal Sewell Marks of this town could easily win the vote of the children as the most popular man in town. He has asked the school committee to reduce the number of school hours to promote greater efficiency of pupils.

Hear Title Games on the Columbia Network

San Francisco, Dec. 19—San Francisco and northern California will be hosts to the entire nation on two days of the waning 1929 football season.

Through arrangements completed with the Columbia Broadcasting System by the Hearst Radio Service, 63 stations are to be linked together to provide listeners in every nook and cranny of the United States with one of the most complete word pictures ever put on the air in the coverage of major sporting events.

The two events are the Stanford-Army game at Palo Alto, on Saturday, Dec. 28, and the Shrine East-West all-star game at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco on Jan. 1.

Both of these games will not only be contests between the East and the West so far as the teams are concerned, but the outstanding radio sports announcers from each coast will be heard covering the games.

The two men, both outstanding figures in the realm of picturing with words great sport events, are Ted Husing, Columbia Broadcasting System announcer and Ernie Smith, the Hearst Radio Service broadcaster.

These two men are fast friends and are joining hands to make both these broadcasts the outstanding events of their careers. They will be rivals, but friendly ones. They will alternate by quarters in each game. Both have a large following, Husing in the East and Smith on the Pacific coast.

In addition to the work of the announcers, every audible feature in the huge stadium at Palo Alto and San Francisco will be put on the air over more than 60 stations through the nation and along the coast. KFRC will be the key station in this hookup.

The Stanford-Army game will have the air to itself throughout the nation. On New Year's Day San Francisco will undoubtedly have the preponderant audience throughout the United States, in view of the fact that the players in the East-West game here will be drawn from every section of the country. It is easy to imagine how each locality will be listening in to "see" how its favorite son is doing here in the major game on New Year's Day.

QUESTIONS About Material and Place of Purchase Will Be Answered Gladly by This Department

Give Gloves to Your Smart Friends This Xmas

ONE, two, three, five pairs, no one ever has too many of the right kind of gloves. And with these accessories more than ever a part of the color scheme of the costume, the clever woman plans a glove wardrobe to take care of all her needs—a splendid theme for Christmas giving.

A pair for sports, to wear with those casual, comfortable tweeds that improve the town or country scene—are snugly buttoned about the wrist. They may be of capeskin—washable, of course, as in the first sketch.

AROUND town—in the restaurants, in the shops, one finds the hands of the second sketch, smartly gloved in suede or doeskin. Those shown are correct—slightly longer slip-ons. A hint, black is very chic to wear with colors.

For afternoon the hands one sees wear suede gloves, wrinkled about the wrist, third sketch. The skin is very fine and soft, the color a light biscuit or rosy beige. The correct length is the six, eight, or even the 10-button length. Twelve-button for very formal wear, fourth sketch. Any of your discerning friends would adore a pair of these gloves.

FOR evening, gloves are imperative to the chic of the ensemble. These are in the 16 or 20 button lengths, if they are smart. The colors are beiges, white, with black, new, striking and exceedingly smart.

It is quite right and proper to wear a bit of crystal on your gloves this season, for a "tea hour" glove has been designed with colored crystal drops adorning the edge. The glove is of kid or suede in off-white shades and the crystal drops are matched by a button that fastens at the wrist. This is a gay little conceit for the afternoon costume of simple graceful lines.

Lapin Angora Hose Give Luck of Rabbit's Foot

THE soft silkiness of the rabbit's foot ought to bring luck, but the soft, silky warmth of lapin angora is sure to be lucky for the wearer in the cold winter days that are coming.

Lapin angora is a fine soft yarn that is spun from the hairs of a special kind of European rabbit.

It makes the socklets that are illustrated here. Light as down, they are warmly comfortable for skating, skiing and hiking, and were decidedly in evidence at the late season football games.

MAINE TO PAY TRIBUTE TO BLAINE

Augusta, Me., Dec 19—The 100th anniversary of the birth of James G. Blaine, distinguished son by adoption of the city of Augusta and the state of Maine will be observed here Jan. 31, 1930.

Although Blaine was born in Pennsylvania, he is known to the nation as a Maine man, and it was Maine that he represented in Congress. It was as a Maine man that he made his race for the presidency and it was a Maine man that he occupied high Cabinet positions.

When tourists from the far corners of this country visit the Maine capitol building, it is Blaine's portrait that they always ask to see. It is Blaine's residence which has become the official home of Maine governors, having been given to the state by the statesman's daughter, Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale, as a memorial to her son, Walter Blaine Beale, who died on a battlefield in France in the World War.

In 1921 the bodies of Blaine and his wife, who was a native of this city, were removed from their burial place in Pennsylvania and reinterred on a high plot of ground overlooking Blaine's adopted city.

While no legislative appropriation has been made for the observance of the birthday anniversary, Governor Gardiner has the matter under consideration at the present time.

The quarterly bulletin of the Maine State library, which comes out in January, will be a Blaine number and will contain much of interest about the life activities of Maine's best known citizen.

Northampton, Eng., Dec 19 (AP)—An X-ray examination of the Hon. Nancy Astor, who was thrown while riding in a hunt yesterday, has revealed a slight injury to the spine, but no serious results are expected by her physicians.

Chicago, June 19 (AP)—Judge Sabath is for the weaker sex. Charles Mitchell, sued for alimony, averred he was out of work because of poor health. The Mrs. said she had been losing weight and was way down to 106. The judge sent them both to be looked over by a doctor. He proposes to make the stronger support the other.

Gordon Godowsky and Wife Separate

Godowsky, son of Leopold Godowsky, famous pianist and composer, explained today that clash of temperament brought about the rift, but that he still loved Yvonne, whom he married in 1928.

Reasonable safety of the high ways [illegible] essential to the continuance and expansion of prosperity. * * *

So many people think they need not use hand signals that Capt. Parker's latest word will surprise thousands. Here is his answer to the question "Are hand signals required by the motor vehicle law?" "There is no statutory requirement that hand signals must be used, but the registrar recommends the universal use of hand signals, and will take notice of the neglect to use them, in any case that is before him for consideration. Let other operators know what you intend to do before you suddenly slow down, stop or change your course. Use of hand signals is an indication of careful, considerate operation."

The careful driver who slows down suddenly, even when his car is equipped with a stop-light, which ought to be ample warning, if working, to a car following, also uses a hand signal. What, then, should be the status of the driver who has no stop-light or one not working, and who slows down without using a hand signal? The chief offender is the driver who suddenly changes his couse without warning, and he will "get away with it" in 99 cases out of 100.

* * *

Requirement for sudden stopping, sometimes without due opportunity to give hand signals, is one of the several possible objections against flooding a traffic district with red lights. There are many who believe the traffic officers themselves are the best regulators of vehicular travel.

NEW LOWS ARE RECORDED IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Stock prices continued to hit the toboggan today as selling pressure was renewed against amusement, public utility, merchandising and specialty shares.

At least a dozen issues were carried to new low levels for the year or longer, and a long line of others were carried 1 to 5 points below last night's closing quotations. Only a few issues moved against the general downward trend.

Acute weakness of International Combustion issues, coincident with the announcement of the appointment of a temporary receiver for that company, and another bad break in Fox Film were believed to be principally responsible for the general unsettlement. International Combustion common sank 5½ points to a new low at 5⅜, and the preferred stock broke 8 points to 21½, which contrast with the year's highs at 103½ and 121, respectively. Fox dropped 86 points to 26½, which compares with the year's high of 105⅝.

R. H. Macy dropped five points, Sears Roebuck four, and Arnold Constable and Gimbel Bros. preferred sank to new low levels for the year.

New lows for the year also were registered by Kolster and Zenith Radios, Fairbanks Morse and Pathe A, while Continental shares sank to the lowest level since it was listed a week ago. Some of the selling in this group is believed to have been for the purpose of establishing income tax losses.

The Bank of England made no change in its discount rate, and its weekly statement, as well as that of the Bank of France, revealed large increases in gold holdings. In view of the reactionary price tendency of the market within the past week, Wall street generally looks for a decrease in brokers' loans.

Considerable uneasiness is apparent however, over the large volume of loans against security collateral shown in the condition statement of reporting Federal Reserve Member Banks. This is construed in some quarters as an indication that many small banks are still carrying large security loans and probably handicapped thereby in providing sufficient funds for business expansion and building development.

Declaration of extra dividends by the Jersey Central Railroad, McAndrews & Forbes and F. H. Shattuck failed to stimulate any bullish enthusiasm.

Leaders went down with some velocity in late afternoon when the break in several low-priced stocks had assumed extensive proportions. U. S. Steel declined about 4 points and Sears Roebuck, Johns Manville, Standard Gas & Electric, Simmons, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, General Electric and Columbian Carbon lost between 5 and 7. Fox Film touched 23, off 12 points, and International Combustion Engineering preferred sold at 18½, down 11.

Dartmouth Mfg. to Lower Its Capital

New Bedford, Dec. 19 (AP)—Reduction of the outstanding capital of the Dartmouth Manufacturing Corporation from $4,200,000 to $2,600,000 was unanimously voted at a meeting of stockholders this noon. Walter H. Langshaw, president of the corporation, presided at the meeting.

Vote was by ballot on a motion which provided that capital stock be reduced $1,600,000 by the cancellation of 12,000 shares of the common stock of the company recently purchased and now in the treasury of the company and of 4000 shares of preferred stock also recently purchased.

Receivership for Combustion Asked

New York, Dec. 19—An order has been signed in an equity suit by Judge Alfred Coxe in United States District Court for Southern New York appointing Nathaniel A. Elsborg and Wilford R. Wood temporary receivers of International Combustion Engineering Corporation and two subsidiary companies. The plaintiff was Bethlehem Steel Corporation, who filed the bill.

This Suggests Mass Producing Near on Farms

Insurance Co. Makes Big Scale Farming Pay; a Revolution Due?

By B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—An insurance company, compelled to take over a lot of farms because of unpaid mortgages is proving that agriculture can be made to pay when brains are mixed with it.

B. C. Forbes

The experience of this company tends to strengthen the growing belief that the day is coming when American agriculture will be on a mass production basis just as industry is today.

J. P. Morgan and other financiers are understood to have backed the now familiar Tom Campbell in developing his 100,000-acre wheat and flax farm in Montana because they believed that proper business and financial methods wedded to practical agricultural skill could make huge-scale farming pay well. That experiment has proved successful. Campbell has become perhaps the best-known farmer in the world. The Soviet Government are said to have offered him a fortune to assume direction of Russia's ultra-ambitious colossal-scale agricultural dreams. Campbell, born on a North Dakota farm, visited Russia this year but elected to remain at the head of his unique Montana enterprise.

It might be said that capitalists aspiring to invest in farming could pick and choose land ideally suited for their purpose but that ordinary farmers have to make the best of whatever kind of soil they happen to find themselves located on, whether good, bad, or indifferent.

In the case of the insurance company, there was no picking and choosing, no selecting of the choicest soils. It simply found itself the unhappy possessor of farms which the previous owners could not make pay. Presumably, therefore, these bankrupt farms were worse, not better, than the average run.

Yet what has since happened?

This information comes from an authority familiar with the facts:

Up to 1920 the National Life Insurance Company had never owned any land in North Dakota. Since then it has had to foreclose on approximately 100,000 acres.

The land is rented out to tenants in quarter-sections and half-sections, with few farms of larger sizes.

A prospective tenant has to sign an agreement that he will run the farm under the company's supervision. The company has two ways of sharing with the tenants, namely, a quarter-crop proposition and a half-crop proposition.

On a quarter-crop proposition the farmer furnishes all the seed, does all the work and the insurance company gets one-quarter of the net proceeds at the elevator when the crop is sold.

On a half-crop proposition, the company furnishes all the seed, pays for half the plowing, and the crop is split fifty-fifty between the farmer and the company when it is marketed.

The company has some full-time superintendents and a few part-time superintendents, who oversee the farms. They lay out the crop rotation and in every instance insist that part of the crop go into sweet clover. The supervisors continuously check up with the farmer, selling him the idea of keeping a set of books, raising enough provisions to take care of himself, getting into stock of various kinds as soon as he possibly can, etc.

In other words, they lay out a program for the farmers and then see that they follow it.

The plan, it is declared, has proved profitable. Also, it has been of great educational value, not only to the farmer partners, but to other farmers in adjacent territory.

The information is added that another insurance company that also has become an involuntary owner of farms is getting ready to start operations on similar lines.

Judging from the widespread complaints constantly coming to hand to the effect that it is no longer possible for most farmers to earn a decent living, it has become quite as difficult to make a small, individual farm pay as it is to make a small, individual store or other business pay. We see the small business man being driven out daily by large-scale operators. Does the same fate face the small farmer?

Indications are that it does.

CURB MARKET PRICES DRIFT DOWNWARD

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Curb market stocks continued to drift gradually lower today, as nothing developed to shake the market out of its lethargy. Operations remained almost entirely professional, and price ranges narrow. The selling appeared to represent little more than year end establishing of losses for tax purposes. The bear crowd was not particularly active.

Placing of the New Middle West Utility stock on a 2 per cent stock dividend basis was about in line with expectations, and feel that as a market factor. The stock sagged along with the leading utilities generally. Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, Allied Power and Light, and Hydro Electric sagged a point or two. Niagara Hudson sold within a small fraction of its low.

Motor and aviation shares were also inclined to sag. Ford of Canada lost 2 points during the morning. Fokker Aircraft dipped more than a point and Stutz sold close to its low of the year. In the radio group Dubilier encountered profit taking on its recent advance attributed to profitable patent licensing contracts, and dipped more than a point.

Earl Radio, which recently went into a receiver's hands, was stricken from the list, after selling as low as ⅛. Its high for the year was 12½. Fox Theaters "A" was again heavy, in sympathy with renewed pressure against Fox Film on the "big board."

In the oils Cities Service sagged a little further in fairly active trading. Others were dull, Indiana and Gulf easing moderately.

Hartford Fire to Form Subsidiary

Hartford, Ct., Dec. 19 (AP)—The Hartford Fire Insurance Company has organized a new subsidiary company to be named The Citizens Insurance Company of New Jersey. The new company will succeed to the good will and business of the Citizens Insurance Company of Missouri, another subsidiary, which it will replace, and will begin business with $1,000,000 capital and $1,000,000 paid in surplus.

The Hartford company has also announced an increase in the capital of the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Company, another of its subsidiaries, from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 by stock dividend, and the reduction in par value of the latter's stock from $100 to $10.

Wheat Prices Off in Chicago Market

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP)—Lower prices here for wheat today accompanied downturns in Liverpool quotations, together with talk that the United States government crop report is bearish. Most traders apparently favored the selling side of the market, and buying support was limited. Opening ⅜ to 2 cents down, Chicago wheat later held near to the initial range. Corn and oats were also easier, with corn starting ⅜ cent off to ¼ cent up, and subsequently sagging all around. Provisions tended to advance.

Reduction in Loan Figures Expected

Broader Activity for Steels Near

Youngstown, O., Dec. 19—Steel makers are encouraged by developments of the past two weeks, indicating much broader activity for first quarter than this quarter. Operations will be on a low basis next week, because of Christmas, but are expected to climb immediately thereafter, and to show gradual progression during January and February. Automobile buying of steels is likely to be somewhat irregular, but is expected to be much better than in November and December.

Business in Next 6 Months Faces Larger Farm Orders

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Perhaps an undue amount of attention has been given in recent weeks to the purchasing power of speculators and too little to the prospective buying power of farmers.

In comparing the purchasing power of the farmers for the crop year ending next June with that of the previous year, consideration must be given to the fact that non-agricultural prices have declined since July. The crops recently harvested are between 5 and 6 per cent smaller than those of a year ago.

If agricultural prices remain unchanged through the remainder of the 1929-30 crop year, the smaller crop will produce about as much cash as last year's larger crop. Some statisticians estimate that in the event of substantial business recovery and a spurt in agricultural prices that the income of farmers may be as high as $300,000,000 in excess of last year. Irrespective of this, farm purchasing power will be improved inasmuch as ratio between agricultural and non-agricultural prices has altered to the advantage of the farmer. This should mean a reasonably good business outlook for manufacturers of agricultural implements, automobiles, and mail order houses in all farm areas except where extreme drought destroyed crops.

In attempting to forecast farm income, the Harvard Economic Society says: "The ratio of prices received by farmers to prices paid for the goods they bought averaged 103 per cent (1926, 100) for the calendar year 1928, as compared with 98 in the preceding year, and 106 in 1925.

Since non-agricultural prices may decline somewhat, whereas farm prices—to judge from the present crop and livestock situation—are likely to hold their own or advance, one can expect the ratio for the crop year ending June 30, 1930, to the figure (106) of 1925, and even go beyond it. The present year will prove to be a good selling year in those agricultural sections not too severely afflicted with the drought, even though gross incomes do not exceed those of last year. Sales of farm machinery in the 12 months ending September averaged 15 per cent more than those of the 12 months previous."

The stock market in recent sessions has shown a lack of new motives. Accordingly, there is more than usual interest in the forthcoming merger plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Irrespective of the details of the report, the country is moving measurably near a consummation of widespread rail mergers. One result of the recent White House business conference was emphasis on the fact that much railroad developmental work has been held up on account of uncertainty as to mergers. President Hoover is known to favor a quickening of the process of working out a government policy on railroad mergers, and will dubtless seek to hasten railroad marriages, urging new legislation if necessary.

Litigation growing out of the Hatry financial crash in London has indicated that the liabilities of the companies affected will reach $100,000,000. It is interesting that in the recent bull market the American public was less troubled with fraudulent security vendors and bucketeers than in any past bull cycle.

The public, as a result of campaigns by the Better Business Bureaus and other agencies, became sophisticated, and concentrated its speculative capital on the very best grade of stocks. The debacle indicated the need of discrimination as to price and the time of purchase as well as to the character of the security, although when a gilt edge stock is purchased for cash it offers the promise of avoidance of loss if the holder will wait for another major bull market before liquidating.

Owen D. Young, in Capper's Weekly, points out: "Money and credit are not mechanisms of finance, but are bound up with life and with basic moral problems of every man and woman. Thus high business standards require men who are technicians in the sense of making the connecting link between the golden rule, on the one hand, and the most complicated business transaction on the other."

* * *

Present tendencies in the money market reflect chiefly seasonal factors. This is the time of year of maximum currency withdrawals. After the Christmas holidays there will doubtless be a return flow of currency to the banks, and also a reduction of business indebtedness. Then the fundamental easement in the situation will be more visible. The effect of gold exports can be fully offset by the open market purchases by the Federal Reserve System of acceptances and government bonds.

Tennessee Bank to Pay Larger Dividend

According to William Hukа & Co. the board of directors of the Union & Planters National Bank & Trust Co., at a regular meeting held December 13th, declared a special cash dividend of $1 per share payable Dec. 20th to stockholders of record Dec. 19th. The board of directors also decided to raise the regular dividend rate to 16 per cent, effective Jan. 1, 1930. Dividends will be payable quarterly instead of monthly as heretofore.

The new 16 per cent rate includes dividends on stock of the Manhattan Bank & Trust Co., so that the total amount received by stockholders will be 40 cents per share each quarter. Par value of stock is $10.

ARGENTINES STAGE A RALLY IN DULL MART

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—A brisk rally in Argentine listings featured trading in the bond market today. The securities, sold heavily yesterday on the news of suspension of the conversion privilege at the Gold Exchange, recovered a large part of their declines under the stimulus of substantial buying support. Advances of 2 to 4 points were general in the group.

Otherwise, the market was still dull and firm, with the high grade low coupon rails and prime utility obligations getting most of the attention. Advances were in the minor fractions, but far outnumbered declines.

Among the high grade rails, Baltimore & Ohio 6s, Rock Island 4s, Union Pacific 4s, St. Louis San Francisco prior lien 4s, New Haven 4½s, Grand Trunk 7s and Atlantic Coast Line collateral 4s displayed marked firmness, while activity in the utilities embraced Detroit Edison 5s, American Telephone 4s and debenture 5s, Duquesne Light 4½s, and Rochester Gas & Electric 5½s. Industrials still lagged.

Inquiry for United States government issues broadened in the early hours but price fluctuations were small. Latin American loans which had been depressed by the weakness in Argentines moved higher in sympathy with the improved tone in those bonds.

Trading in the convertibles developed few features, and changes either way were narrow.

Big Coal Deposits Found in Canada

Montreal, Que., Dec. 19—Coal deposits in Central British Columbia at Telkwa and Copper River, within a couple of hundred miles of Prince Rupert on the Pacific Coast, amount to at least 460,000,000 tons, says Frank S. Taggart of London, Eng., representative of British capitalists, who has passed through Montreal on his way to England after a visit to mining properties in the West.

English interests, according to Mr. Taggart, are interested in the development of this region in British Columbia and have already instituted preliminary surveys for a railroad between Telkwa and Vanarsdol. This road would go from one point on the Canadian National Railways to another, cutting through the center of the rich coal country.

AT THE DIAL

By THE RADIO EDITOR

THE LAND of Invisible Delights offers us tonight a miscellany of entertainment, some good, some a little better, some high of promise, and some more imposing in its apparent opulence than in its artistic resources. However, things are looking up, generally, in radio program construction. Night by night, by every night, radio is getting better and better, our studio friends may boast with some justice.

PILGRIMS CHORUS and Evening Star, from Wagner's "Tannhauser," will be featured by Bernhard Levitow and his Concert Ensemble over the Columbia System this evening at 7:30. Ben Alley will be the tenor soloist.

COUNTESS OLGA MEDOLAGO ALBANI, Spanish soprano, is the guest artist with Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees during their weekly appearance on the Fleischmann Sunshine Hour, broadcast from 8 to 9 over WEEI and coast-to-coast network of stations affiliated with WEAF in New York city. The countess presents "Clavelitos" (Carnations) of the Spanish composer, Valverda, and follows with "More Than You Know," from Vincent Youman's show "Great Day." Her final number is an Italian composition, "Occhi Turchini" (Turquoise Eyes) by Denza. Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees present football songs of Tufts, Maine, Bowdoin, Amherst and Brown. Additional numbers include the waltz medley, which Valle has made popular, and three numbers of the moment, "Can't We Be Friends?" "Can't You Understand?" and "Love Made a Gypsy of Me." The program closes with tunes from "Sunnyside Up."

TRUE DETECTIVE Mysteries will present The Sinister Riddle of Camp Dix at 9 o'clock over WNAC and stations of the Columbia System. Ellis H. Parker, chief of detectives of Burlington county, New Jersey, one of the nation's famous sleuths, supplied material for the broadcast. It is the tale of an almost clueless murder of a soldier, listed as a deserter, who was found dead in a wild stretch of woods near Camp Dix. The man had no known enemies and Chief Parker who was called in found little to work on. But his ingenuity and persistence wove the few clues and tell-tale statements he uncovered into a net from which the real culprit could not escape.

THE Seiberling Singers broadcast a special program at 9 tonight, featuring selections composed by great two American leaders of business. The program will prove that real musical inspiration can be found in the romance of business, and that long hair and eccentricity are not necessarily a part of the equipment of great composers. The program will open with a composition by Edgar B. Davis of Brockton, industrial leader, multi-millionaire and philanthropist. American radio listeners Thursday evening will hear for the first time the Seiberling Singers quartet's special four-voice arrangement of Mr. Davis' song, "Mother."

Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador to Great Britain, former Vice-President of the United States and financial genius, is the composer of the selection that will be featured by the Seiberling singing violins, the Dawes "Melody."

A NEW radio feature, the Estabrook & Eaton Smoker, will have its premiere from WNAC at 9:30. Sheldon Fairbanks, general manager of the Boston Garden; E. Mark Sullivan, former corporation counsel of Boston; Eddie Shore and George Owen, Boston Bruins hockey stars, will all take part in the program. An orchestra will be under the direction of Joe Rines. He will sing his own version of "I Can Get It for You Wholesale." The Serenaders radio quartet will contribute a group of selections specially arranged by Al Scofield. Hudson Carmody, bass, and Ray Simonds, tenor, will be soloists.

MARY GARDEN will be featured in the Radio-Victor Hour broadcast from WEEI through the NBC System at 10 o'clock. The program will be made up principally of works by American and French composers, and will include instrumental selections played by the new Victor Salon Orchestra, under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret. In the list of numbers by Miss Garden is the aria, "Depuis Le Jour," from the opera "Louise," in which the singer made her first hit at the Opera Comique in Paris. The complete program follows:

The Victor (Shilkret); Marche Heroique (Saint-Saens); Girls (impressions of a French music hall) (Pierne), New Victor Salon Orchestra, Nathaniel Shilkret conducting; Depuis Le Jour—Louise) (Charpentier), Mary Garden; Introduction and Allegro (Ravel), strings, harp, flute and clarinet; Manhattan Moonlight (Alter), New Victor Salon Orchestra; (a) At Dawning (Cadman); (b) Comin' Thru the Rye, folk song, Mary Garden; Turkey in the Straw (Guion); (a) Girl With the Flaxen Hair (Debussy); (b) Minstrels (Debussy); (c) Ballet No. 4 (petite suite) (Debussy), New Victor Salon Orchestra; (a) Beau Soir (Debussy); (b) Card Scene (Carmen) (Bizet), Mary Garden; Rio Rita (special arrangement with vocal quartet) (Tierny) (a) Mandolinata Paraphrase (Paladilhe and Saint-Saens); (b) Shadow Dance (MacDowell), New Victor Salon Orchestra; In the Gloaming (special arrangement) (Orred-Harrison), Mary Garden, with vocal quartet; Rhapsody in Blue (Gershwin).

BAD WEATHER KEEPS FLIERS ON GROUND

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Still the merry chase goes onward. Skyways salesmen are jumping at every possible lead in order to boost their standing in the cross-country "race," the winner of which will be presented with a week-end trip to Montreal.

The past few days of bad weather and the fact that the present ground school class is so far advanced have slowed down the ground school students, according to Tom Goldie, runner-up to Clem McIsaacs, the leader of the contest.

Goldie stated that the next class would begin their courses with the mechanics and ground school on the first Monday of January. Several prospective students have been signed for the new classes, but the fact that the time for beginning is so far away keeps more from jotting their names on the dotted line.

"Mac" and Tom give the rest of the Skyways crew a lot of amusement with their ever attentive attitude toward any stranger who wanders through the door. Talk about your hawks awaiting a stray chicken, these boys make a hawk look silly.

But who wouldn't keep one's eyes open with a trip to Canada awaiting the winner?

Another day, the second one to our knowledge, since the airport grew up with the sudden boom after Lindbergh's flight, in which not one single airplane left the ground or landed. Blankets of fog and sheets of rain swept the reaches of filled land, and the flying personnel of the operating companies were conspicuous by their absence.

The boys who did make their way to the airport spent most of the time doing a little hangar flying, and catching the wary sea-gulls and pigeons as they walked along. When the birds start using their feet instead of their wings, it's a foggy day.

"Nothing any better than roast sea-gull for lunch," declared Tom Croce as he chased one of the birds all over the airport. Said bird was evidently having the time of its life.

A passenger who wanted to get to Albany in a hurry had to be turned down by Curtiss-Wright because of the bad weather. That city was also engulfed in a fog bank, and Harry Copland was forced to refuse the trip.

Until the spring rolls around again, there will be no more passenger trips made by the Colonial Air Transport on Sundays and holidays. No reason for the cancellation of the flights on these days was given, but it is believed that lack of patronage on the first day of the week was responsible for the order.

Regular scheduled trips on week days, leaving the Boston Airport at 11:20 a. m. and 4 p. m. daily, will be continued through the winter months.

"There's something about having 1200-horsepower around you that brings a feeling of safety over the rather poor flying country between here and Gotham," said Anderson. "I guess it's me for the tri-motors everytime from now on."

Nevertheless, Al climbs into Doc Gately's Great Lakes every now and then and proceeds to blow off steam by throwing the little ship all over the sky.

Gods Not Responsible for Man's Injuries

Berlin, Dec. 19—A Prussian court decided that Fritz Berberich had become injured as the result of his own carelessness and not from the curse of heathen gods incurred by removal of the remains of "Satan's Throne" from Pergamon, "The Lofty Citadel," in Turkey.

He had brought suit for damages against Dr. Theodore Weigand, director of the Museum of Antiquities in Berlin, and also against the Prussian government on the ground that he had been employed by both as a foreman. He had sought a life annuity, alleging that his injuries had incapacitated him for his accustomed work.

Prisoner Too Fat to Make Getaway

Moundsville, W. Va., Dec. 19—The waistline of Frank Williams, alias A. R. Bogost, 25, was a bit too corpulent for the hole sawed through the cell bars of a window in the West Virginia penitentiary, and he only succeeded in effectively closing up the gap through which three long-term convicts escaped.

Forty armed guards searched the hills about Moundsville for Dana and Adrian Bias, brothers, and Basil Childers, serving terms ranging from 25 to 40 years for robbery. In his scramble for freedom Bogost became tightly wedged in the aperture and he had to be extricated by guards.

Boy Killed When Sled Hits Coop

East Princeton, Dec. 19—Caldwell Melvin, nine, was instantly killed when he lost control of the sled on which he was coasting near his home and plunged over an 18-foot embankment.

Four Killed in Fog

Essen, Ger., Dec. 19 (AP)—Foggy weather was responsible for the death today of four railway track workers and the injury of eight others.

TAMMANY SEES PERIL IN PAY INCREASES

New York, Dec. 19 (INS)—Tammany's political bigwigs were said to be worried no little today over the proposal of what appears to be a majority of the board of aldermen to increase their salaries from $5000 to $75000 a year.

The plan is regarded with misgivings by Tammany chiefs. They believe if the aldermen raise their salaries it might cause a legislative investigating committee to committee to come to New York to see how the aldermen earn their pay.

It is no secret that while the powers of the aldermen are broad, they do not do a great deal of work. Tongues have been wagging at a rapid clip since the proposal to raise aldermen's pay came to light.

Some political observors claim the functions of the board of aldermen could be handled without trouble by the board of estimate and by bureau heads.

Tammany wants the board of aldermen retained as it provides the organization with 60 $5000-a-year jobs—to say nothing of various minor positions. It is one of Tammany's best patronage adjuncts.

The proposal of the aldermen for bigger pay follows the action of increasing the mayor's salary from $25,000 a year to $40,000 a year.

Mrs. J. S. Cram Sued for Rent of Villa

New York, Dec. 19—Mrs. Fannie Tailer Carpenter filed suit in City Court against Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram, social registrite, for $1783.68, which she says is due in back rent for her Newport villa.

The complaint states that Mrs. Cram rented the villa for last July, August and September, agreeing to pay $3250. She paid half when she signed the lease, according to the complaint, agreed to pay the rest September 1, but when the time came, refused to do so.

Wills $10,000 Fund to Lynn Hospital

Thomas Roland, late Nahant florist, left public bequests in his will totalling $14,500 which was filed for probate at Salem.

The bulk of which goes to his immediate family. Lynn Hospital, Salvation Army, Independent Methodist Church of Nahant and the Boston Children's Friend Society benefit from the will. The hospital gets $10,000, church $2500 and the others $1000 each.

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

GIVING A TRICK

Declarer's count of the positive tricks in own and Dummy's hands is the most important preliminary to sound No Trump play. By so doing, Declarer may determine what finesses, if any, must be made and what precautions should be taken against a possibly unfavorable split of the adverse cards of one or more suits he may attempt to establish.

In this deal, the North player can count eight positive tricks without any finesses and 10 tricks should the outstanding adverse Diamonds be split 3-2. He further sees that should the adverse Diamonds be split 4-1, he can concede a Diamond trick and still make game. On the other hand, should he fail to concede this trick and find a 4-1 split in Diamonds against him, he will make but the A-K-Q of Diamonds as he lacks the entries to bring in the remaining cards of Dummy's Diamond suit.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: South bids originally one Diamond, which North takes out with one No Trump, holding the three suits other than Diamonds well stopped. All pass thereafter, no player having any sound reason for disturbing the No Trump bid.

Contract: South bids originally one Diamond as at Auction. North advances the bid to a game contract of three No Trumps at once, holding double stoppers in the three suits other than that bid by partner. North can figure that his 4½ Quick Tricks, in connection with his partner's Diamond bid, should produce a game at No Trumps and therefore any intermediate steps such as bidding one of his four card suits would seem pointless.

The Play

East leads initially the top of his Heart sequence, the Queen, which Declarer wins with the Ace.

As indicated in the introductory remarks, Declarer now stops to count the hand. Realizing that he has nine tricks laid down, after granting adversaries a Diamond trick, he leads the Diamond 2; East plays the Diamond 8, which Declarer allows to hold the trick as a precautionary measure against a possible 4-1 split of the adverse Diamonds. For all Declarer knows, he may be thus conceding an unnecessary trick to his adversaries, but why take a chance in this situation?

East, in the lead with the Diamond 8, continues with his Heart suit, playing the Jack, which Declarer wins with the King.

Declarer now plays five rounds of Diamonds, forcing East to discard two of his good Hearts in order to keep Club and Spade protection. To play absolutely safe, Declarer can now take the Ace of Spades and Ace of Clubs for the eighth and ninth tricks needed for game.

On the other hand, East is marked as holding but one more Heart, and Declarer can safely take the Club finesse which, if it loses, will enable East to lay down his good Heart and then force either a Club lead up to North's Ace or a Spade lead up to North's A-J. Regardless of which way North elects to play it, he makes three odd on the hand.

It will thus be seen that Declarer's precautionary play of conceding a Diamond trick was well worth while.

Opera

Needs Friends, Must Have Sponsors, in Boston as Elsewhere

THE Lowell Courier-Citizen, moved in part by the failure of an opera company to carry out its program in full and according to schedule, wants to know "what is the matter with Boston?"

> "The failure of one more opera company—a very good one, too, according to all accounts—to gain public support, suggests that the real trouble with the city is not its Puritanism, but the lack of culture among its populace. . . . there is not enough interest in music to support even a modestly planned opera company. The old Boston is no more, and the new Boston leaves much to be desired from a cultural standpoint, in spite of the wealth of educational institutions within its limits or close to its borders."

In supposing that the recent collapse signifies a lack of interest in opera hereabout we believe the Courier-Citizen to be mistaken.

Another mistake was in the time. Early December is NOT the season for a new venture in either drama or music.

The promoters failed again, we believe, in that there was not sufficient volume to their publicity and that it did not find the proper channels. They might have learned something, too, from the methods of the Theater Guild, whose canvassers make sure of an audience before the curtain is raised.

Finally, they appear to have looked for support, or at least encouragement, to the fashionables of the town; who, we are advised by "hard-boiled" authority, are "indisposed to support any other opera than that provided by Chicago through a crowded fortnight."

It IS true, of course, that there is no money to be made out of opera, under whatever attendant conditions. In the case of the Chicago company, for example, more than eight hundred of Boston's leading citizens are listed as GUARANTORS, ready to make good the unavoidable deficit.

We don't believe opera needs to be either housed or dressed so magnificently. It is our opinion that, leaving the fashionables to their fortnight of "Chicago," there is a public in Greater Boston which would respond to a less pretentious eight-week season sensibly planned, properly financed, modestly manned, capably directed, intelligently managed.

All that is needed are one or two patrons.

And who, hard or soft-boiled, wants to say that they will not be found in the city of the Lowell Institute, Franklin Union, Fenway Court, the George Robert White Fund and Major Higginson's orchestra?

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—The old time amiable, alcoholic and roaming printer has vanished from the face of the earth. A picturesque and talented nomad, he made his home wherever he happened to hang his hat. For him there were no dark tomorrows. All was a brave today.

Few prima donnas were so touchily temperamental. Many have, for no reason whatever, walked out of Park Row printeries in "the middle of a stick" and climbed under the rods of a freight train. The next heard of them would be from some far off city—like San Francisco, Portland or perhaps Shanghai.

They were the most unreliable, yet at the same time the most efficient of all workmen when standing at their case. They never needed watching for they had the pride of artistry in filling their galleys rapidly and with the minimum of needed corrections.

Their profound store of knowledge has helped many journalistic fledglings over rough spots. Despite their vagabondage, few fell afoul of the law. Sober or in their cups they had a right code of honor. Their besetting sin was drink. And they drank deep.

Trade unionism and its strict exactments for both employer and employe steadied the printer. He found he could no longer carouse and hold his job. Today the printer is a fair model of sobriety. He is a regular patron of the savings bank. He even carries a cane.

There is a deep gulf between the blowzy, unshaven creatures who slouched into composing rooms and ad alleys of yesterday and the spruce, clear-eyed fellows who now cast type on the linotpye machines. Nearly all printers today are settled husbands and home owners with bank accounts.

In New York the majority live in sprightly towns on Staten Island. Their wives meet them at the ferry in automobiles. It is doubtful if any other class of workmen has made such progress in improving living and working conditions in the past 20 years.

New York hotels nightly house more than 5000 commuters who have "missed the last train from town." Some innocently and others not so innocently. Aside from the hotels, the telephone company is handsomely enriched by telephoned explanations to suburban homes.

Paris hailed "La Prisoniere," which under the title of "The Captive," was closed in New York, but has stopped "Les Desages." It was scheduled for a New York production this winter. The action of the play centered about that depressing night place, the haunt of slumming tourists to Montmartre Hill, known as "La Petite Chaumiere." As the name implies it is a little thatched cottage frequented by men who are "le petite" something or other. The chief objection in France was made by naval officers who resented a rouged sailor being portrayed as the barman in the iniquitous den.

A Monsieur le Duc, with two front page episodes of debt dodging to his credit in as many weeks, is still stopping at a smart Fifth ave. hotel, but every morning at nine he must "duke" it to the cashier and advance money for the next day's rent, and he must pay cash for his meals and incidentals. But he is still a Monsieur le Duc right down to his rimless monocle.

Fred C. Kelly used to amuse himself in a New York hotel lobby by dropping a watch crystal as a certain English author with a rimless monocle passed by. The author would invariably stop, begin looking about and then, discovering his glass in place, walk on—very puzzled.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

TO the honorable judge and associate playmates of the retail holiday districts:

The violation occurred during a dinner in 1926 at which many prominent men were disguised as pals.

Three years is a long lapse of time and evidence. Even a Chinaman won't keep your laundry that long.

The only clue presented to the grand jury was a sniff.

There are many kinds of sniffs. There is the patrician sniff with the upper lip curled like a rose petal. And there is the proletariat sniff with nostrils akimbo.

The sniffer testifies that he applied his nose to the nozzle of a mysterious bottle and inhaled an aroma concocted of the ambrosia of Valhalla, the magnolia of the South and the apple blossoms of Normandy.

He gives a beautiful description of that enchanted perfume, but the law of averages states that you cannot share a sniff.

Therefore, the grand jury was sniffless. The fisherman follows the path of the mackerel by the bubbles on the surface, the intrepid woodsman tracks the wolf by his pawprints in the snow, but no grand jury can build up a case on the plans and specifications of a sniff.

The sniffee states he acquired his now famous sniffle at a dinner. The grand jury has decided that, when a gentleman is found under a table, he is not a spy but a guest.

The party of the first sniffer also testifies, with benefit of red seal and notary, that he is what is unpopularly known as a bone dry. Reduced to the least common denominator, a bone-dry is a citizen who has never bought a drink but waxes fat and glorious on the sniffs.

Equipped with a telescopic nose, that is both inquisitive and prehensile, he goes through life something like a vacuum carpet cleaner, breathing in the dust and the dirt to an accompaniment of his own contented buzzing.

He spurns the loaf and hoards the crumbs. He has never tasted liquor but he likes to smell it.

Wherefore, the matter having been placed before this august body of men in December, it is deemed that the extraordinary lapse of time and evidence has been chewed dizzy by the evaporation in transit. When this grand jury considers a case it wants more than a sniff.

John Doe, foreman.

P. S.—That goes for the other 11 guys, too.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

3A. MAMMALS

THE class Mammalia includes most of the animals with which we are familiar—ourselves and dogs, cats and horses, pigs and mice. They are warm-blooded animals, a distinction which they share with the birds, and in order to keep their temperature up they are more or less completely covered with hair. This hair, we may note, is one of the distinguishing features of mammals. Moreover, they are peculiar in the treatment of their young.

H. G. Wells

For the most part they bring forth their young alive instead of laying eggs after the fashion of most creatures, and they are unique in that their females have special milk-producing glands with which to suckle their offspring.

These are the most characteristic points but there are others. The muscular diaphragm which separates chest from belly is a characteristic feature of the mammals; in other vertebrates the heart and lungs and bowels all lie in one large body-cavity, but the mammalian body is "bicameral"—two chamber. They have better-developed brains, and consequently minds, than any other animal. And while the lower jaw of all other vertebrates consists of several bones joined together, the mammals have a lower jaw of one single bone.

This fact, which may seem unimportant to the inexpert reader, is of very great value in tracing the evolution of the group, because in many extinct species, and particularly early mammalian species, only the lower jaws drop off floating carcasses, to be embedded and preserved in river mud.

Now there are three grades of mammals, differing in the manner in which they treat their young.

The first grade, the Monotremes, is a very small one; it includes two curious creatures, the spiny anteater and the duckbill (platy pus) or water-mole, which show a number of striking resemblances to the reptiles. They stand markedly apart from the rest of the class.

They differ from the other members of the class in that they lay eggs instead of bearing young; nevertheless, when young ones hatch, they are suckled by the mother.

In their egg-laying habits they are reptile-like, and they show other reptilian features in their skeletons, the structure of the brain, in not being able to keep their temperature as constant as that of other mammals.

The duck bill is found only in Australia and Tasmania; it lives in streams, feeding on insects, snails, small bivalve molluscs and the like, and it makes a burrow in the bank, where it lays its eggs. The spiny anteaters, of which there are two genera and several species, are found in Australia, Tasmania and New Guinea; the females carry their eggs in a large pocket in the skin of the belly until they hatch.

These creatures are fascinating from the evolutionary point of view; they are living missing links, the sole survivors of a time when some of the reptiles were turning themselves into mammals by acquiring warm blood and hair.

The remaining mammals fall into two parallel sections, of which one is very much larger than the other.

The first and smaller section is the marsupials, or pouched mammals. These animals are intermediate between the egg-laying monotremes and the higher mammals that are familiar to everybody, for they bring forth their young alive, but they bring them forth in a very helpless and undeveloped condition, and then carry them in pouches on their bellies, where they remain glued to the mother's teats until they are able to fend for themselves.

They are viviparous, but only just so. An idea of the helplessness of a young marsupial at birth may be gained from the fact that a newly born kangaroo—of one of the biggest kinds of kangaroo—is about the size of one's little finger.

Living marsupials are found only in Australia, New Guinea and the adjacent islands—except for the opossums, which occur in America.

The best-known marsupials are the kangaroos and opossums, but there are many other forms, showing a great range of specialized structure and habit. There are wolf-like, cat-like, mole-like and anteater-like marsupials; and some of them even have parachutes of skin connecting the fore and hind limbs together so that they can plane through the air like a flying squirrel.

In fact, the marsupial orders and sub-orders parallel most of the orders of the next section in their diversity of structure and habit.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

"WHEE-EW! I'm a total wreck!" breathed Mrs. Green, sinking into a chair, and reaching a nervous hand for a cigarette. "I've been taking a test for an automobile license! And, believe ME, if John doesn't give me that car for Christmas—I'll make him eat turkey for a week.

"He will!" soothed Mrs. Divot, reassuringly. "But thank heaven, we don't have to take a test before we get a marriage license!"

"That would be easy!" retorted Mrs. Green with a short laugh. "A man can usually be run by intuition—and a simple twist of the wrist. No modern woman is afraid of a man—but every woman is a little AFRAID of a machine! There is something so—so un-human about it.

"An automobile cannot be wheedled or coaxed or bluffed, like a husband.

"When you push the accelerator by accident, instead of the brake, it LEAPS forward, instead of slowing down as you meant it to do. And when you make a right-hand turn instead of a left-hand turn, it goes right into a ditch, without stopping to argue with you."

"I know what you mean," said Mrs. Divot sympathetically. "Your automobile doesn't UNDERSTAND you!"

"No," sighed Mrs. Green. "Any Reno judge would agree to that. But, that's the difference between a machine and a man. You can't EXPLAIN to it, or weep on its shoulder, or speak to it sharply, or kick it under the table. It never learns to obey the look in your eye or to know the meaning of your smile, or to recognize the dangerous tone in your voice."

"Well, I know a lot of men who are like that," said Mrs. Divot. "But, like automobiles, they can be scientifically handled and kept running straight, if you don't get panicky. The trouble with a woman is, that she is so apt to get panicky, when she finds herself in traffic, or comes to a sudden turn.

"The thing to do is to feel deep down in your soul, 'You may be bigger and stronger than I am, Big Boy, but I'm SMARTER than you are, and you're going the way I WANT you to go!' A woman should always feel her POWER over a man or a car—or she's lost! That's what is called 'woman's gentle influence.'"

"Yes?" said Mrs. Green, icily. "Well, you just try that 'gentle influence' and psychic control on a big brute of a machine that doesn't KNOW that you've got a license to own it and run it and boss it. When a woman has worked for a month preparing herself to take a test for an automobile license and has put through a hectic half hour GETTING it, she has plenty of respect for the law—and the license!"

"Exactly!" agreed Mrs. Divot. "That's just my point! And if every young man and woman had to prove himself or herself qualified to get a MARRIAGE license, perhaps they wouldn't regard is as 'just a scrap of paper'—and there would be fewer matrimonial wrecks. But I know a lot of little cuties who would never pass the test!"

Wonderful France

Her Work of Reconstruction

(Copyright, 1929)

IN THE WAR DAYS

The war was fought on French soil. The French villages and cities, and millions of French lives were destroyed.

The French, the Germans and the British lost many lives. But German and British soil were not invaded.

After this war, as after many other wars, the French showed their wonderful power to restore their country and their agriculture and resume their place in the world.

SAME FIELD TODAY

The four pictures here tell the story better than any words could do.

When the French peasant plows with his team of powerful Percheron horses, or his four oxen, he must be careful, for he turns over shells, some not yet exploded and dangerous.

IN THE KILLING TIME NEAR RHEIMS

BACK TO PEACE, AND WORK

Fields that were full of shell holes are smooth, the plow and the harrow have done their work.

Where men were dying and groaning crops are growing.

Let us hope that the intelligence of the great people of Europe will be sufficient to keep these fields fertile, to prevent, hereafter, the murder crop of war.
